POLITICAL.

The Vote in Joint Convention at Albany for U. S. Senators.

The Bribery Investigation—Washington News — Gen. Longstreet — Capitol Gossip.

The Joint Convention.

ALBANY, June 16.—The Joint Convention balloted for a successor to Conkling with the following result: Senate—Jacobs 6, Conkling 9, Wheeler 11, Cornell 2, Lapham 2, Bradley 1, Folger 1; Assembly—Jacobs 45, Conkling 23, Wheeler 27, Rogers 1, Cornell 9, Lapham 10, Folger 2, Tremaine 3, Crowley 4, Combined vote—Jacobs 51, Conkling 32, Wheeler 38, Rogers 1, Cornell 11, Lapham 12, Bradley 1, Folger 3, Tremaine 3, Crowley 4. Wheeler took nearly all of Rogers' vote. The Convention then proceeded to vote to fill the long term vacancy with the following result: Senate—Depew 13, Kernan 7, Platt 7, Cornell 4, Crowley 1. Assembly—Depew 41, Kernan 45, Platt 20, Folger 2, Cornell 8, Crowley 4, Lapham 1, Wheeler 1, Tracey 1.

Combined vote—Depew 54, Kernan 52, Platt 27, Folger 2, Cornell 12, Crowley 5, Lapham 1, Wheeler 1, Tracey 1.

Brooks asked consent to offer a resolution that in the event no election is made for U. S. Senators by Monday, June 20, this Joint Convention will adjourn sine die that day, after one or more ballots had been taken, and with the understanding on the part of the Convention that the two Houses of the Legislature will adjourn at 3 p. m. June 20. Husted raised a point of order that it was not in the power of this Joint Convention to adjourn. The Lieut. Governor decided the point of order well taken. This Joint Convention must meet daily until the Legislature adjourns. Adjourned until to-morrow noon.

Passed.

ALBANY, June 16.—The Assembly has passed the bill taxing brokers' sales.

The Bribery Investigation.

ALBANY, June 16.—The bribery investigation continued this morning. Wm. A. Graves, of the firm of Spencer, Trask & Co., testified that Sessions' account was closed June 7 by the payment of $6,616 in currency. Sessions' account was a profitable one. The last purchase on his account was St. Paul preferred. I have talked with Sessions about the denomination of the bills I paid him. There were three one thousand dollar bills and three thousand dollars in one hundred dollar bills. Sessions told me he wanted to close the account and get large bills to take home with him. I talked with Sessions last evening about this case, but was here yesterday afternoon to give my testimony if called upon. Before I had had any special conversation with him he told his recollection of the matter of the bills, but his statement has not influenced my own opinion. It is unusual for men to draw their balance when in amounts of $6,000 in currency.

To Bangs—My conversation with Sessions occurred about 9 o'clock last night.

Bangs to Sessions—Let me see the package of bills, please. Sessions handed Bangs the package of bills, which was shown to witness, and he identified them as apparently the same bills he paid Sessions June 7. Sessions took out nearly all the money I paid him from his trousers' pocket last night when we met at Smith's house, and I ran over the amount and recognized the bills as those I paid him June 7, as some of the bills were entirely new $100 bills. The sum I counted last night was only a few dollars short of $6,616.

To Smith—I went to Smith's house to ask him if I would be obliged to bring up the books of our firm. While there Sessions came in. Our meeting was casual and not by agreement or appointment.

Assemblyman Brady, recalled, was asked for the manuscript he wrote in the room where he met Speaker Sharpe. Bradley handed it to Counsel Bangs, who read it aloud. It was the same as he addressed to the Assembly June 9 when asking for an investigating committee. Had no appointment with Sharpe in his room that night. Knew Gen. Conway. He has never asked me to vote for Gen. Tremaine. I did not want to talk to reporters until I made my statement to the committee. It was not out of regard to Sessions or tenderness for his character that I refused to make the statement to them.

Orsina E. Jones of Jamestown, Chautauqua, was sworn. Recess.

Appointments.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The President today appointed Noah C. McFarland, of Kansas, Commissioner of the General Land Office.

Marshal Dudley, of Indiana, is to be appointed Commissioner of Pensions, vice Bentley, whose resignation is expected to reach the White House this afternoon. Dudley finally concluded that he would rather have the Patent Commissionership, and though he is to be made Pension Commissioner now, it is not improbable that he may be transferred to the Patent Bureau next fall. If this is done Commissioner Marble will be made Assistant Secretary of the Interior.

GEN. LONGSTREET.

Gen. Longstreet arrived here to-day and called on the President. He will take charge of the United States Marshal's office in Georgia on the first of July. Longstreet said in regard to the report that he is to take Mahone's plan in Georgia for dividing the Democracy of that State, that such a move had not been suggested to him nor had he thought of it; that he is willing to do all he can for the Republican party, but does not think that the Republican prospects in Georgia are any ways brilliant.

THE TREASURY RINGSTERS.

Rumors have been flying thick about the report of the Treasury investigation, one telegraphed from here being that Secretary Windom refused to give out the report because it reflected upon Ex-Secretary Sherman. Secretary Windom said to-day emphatically that there is absolutely no reference in the report to Sherman, directly or indirectly, and that the report bears heavier on Pitney than anybody else. Pitney himself is responsible for the reports connecting Sherman's name with the affair. During Sherman's administration of the Treasury it seems that on several occasions he got Pitney to attend to small personal matters for him (Sherman.) On this Pitney has presumed and since he has been under investigation he has on different occasions insinuated that he had orders from high authority for what he did. These inuendoes were so framed as to seem to refer to Sherman, but when called upon to speak right out and tell the whole truth, no matter who it might strike, Pitney sheltered himself behind a refusal to testify on the ground that he might criminate himself.

Iowa Democrats.

DES MOINES, Iowa, June 16.—The Democratic State Convention met in the Academy of Music this morning and was called to order by the Chairman of the State Central Committee, Edward Campbell, Jr. E. D. Fenn was chosen temporary chairman, and T. O. Walker, temporary secretary. On taking the chair Mr. Fenn returned thanks for the honor conferred, and made a speech which was well received. Committees were appointed and the State Central Committee.

An Indian Battle.

ST. PAUL, June 16.—A brief special from Winnepeg to the Pioneer Press says war has broken out between the Sioux and Crees, and a battle has been fought near the Moody Mountain in which twenty-eight of the former were killed. The Crees objected to the Sioux coming further west, hence the trouble.

A Printer Shot.

PITTSBURG, June 16.—Martin Corcoran, a striking printer of the Dispatch, was fatally shot this morning about 2 o'clock by N. J. McCahill, one of the printers employed in the place of strikers. Corcoran assaulted McCahill as the latter was going home, striking him on the head with a handy billy. McCahill thinking he was about to be robbed drew a revolver and fired twice, one ball taking effect in Corcoran's abdomen and the other lodging in the hand of a passer-by. The injured man is still living but the doctors say he will die. McCahill has been arrested.

The Warehouse Fire.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Six steam engines are still at work on the fire at Pierrepont stores, Brooklyn, as a portion of the goods in the warehouses continued to burn, though the buildings are deluged with water. The fire had probably taken in the bales of wool, jute and cotton, where water could not immediately penetrate. The loss is variously estimated at from half to a million or more dollars. About 200 merchants had goods stored in the building and some of the stock was very valuable. Fuller & Co. had $150,000 worth of sugar in hogsheads on the wharf badly damaged. Storehouse No 4 on the river front was gutted, nothing being left but the walls. It will have to be entirely rebuilt. A portion of No. 5 may be saved. The origin of the fire is unknown.

In Search of the Jeannette.

NORFOLK, June 16.—The United States steamer Alliance sailed to-day for a four months' cruise between Norway and Spitzbergen, in search of the missing steamer Jeannette.

England.

LONDON, June 16.—Sir John A. McDonald, the Canadian Premier, has had an interview with Cardinal Manning in regard to emigration and the question of educational interest in Canada.

THE TELEGRAPH OPERATORS.

LONDON, June 16.—The Controller of Telegraphs has issued a circular to the operators of the central office, London, pointing out that it is impossible to satisfactorily dispose of the fluctuating of business of the telegraph office without having recourse to overtime, which is, therefore, compulsory; but that any reasonable application for exemption from overtime will be duly considered. The operators, however, refuse to stand by the above mentioned circular, but reply that Monsell, who was Postmaster-General in 1877, stated in reply to a question in the Commons that overtime was not compulsory. The operators consider this reply settles the question of overtime and they propose pressing for its general adoption.

IN THE COMMONS.

LONDON, June 16.—In the Commons Lord Stanhope (Conservative) gave notice he would ask on Monday next whether representations had been made to the American Government in regard to American organizations for committing outrages in England.

Gladstone said he hoped to give Sir Michael Hicks Beach, formerly Colonial Secretary, an early day for the discussion of his vote of censure on the Government relative to the Transvaal.

THE CORNELL CREW.

LONDON, June 16.—The friends of the Cornell University crew in London are very confident the Stewards of the Henly regatta will reverse the decision relative to the entry of the Cornell four in the race for the Visitors' Cup.

THE TOWN HALL PLOT.

LIVERPOOL, June 16.—A carpenter who, at the order of one of the prisoners, made plugs for the bomb used in the attempt to blow up the Town Hall, has been discovered, and will be called as a witness in the trial. A solicitor has been instructed to defend the prisoners.

ASCOT RACES.

LONDON, June 16.—At Ascot, for the St. James Palace stakes Iroquois beat Leon. Only the two mentioned ran.

The Rous Memorial was won by Poulet: Ishmael second and Toastmaster third. Ten ran including Keene's Don Fulano and Lorrillard's Wallenstein. Foxhall did not start.

LONDON, June 16.—The Gold Cup was won by Robert the Devil, Petronal second, Exeter third.

LONDON, June 16.—The nineteenth New Biennial stakes was won by Skipetar, Roysterer second, Golden Eye third. Six ran, including Keene's Bookmaker.

On the Ascot Heath the report is current that the certificate of Keene's colt "Foxhall" had not been lodged in Paris previous to the decision of the judges in the race for the Grand Prix De Paris.

LONDON, June 16.—The new stakes was won by Kermesse first, Kingdom second, Shrewsbury third. Ten ran, including Keene's Gen. Scott.

LONDON, June 16.—Foxhall was in the race for the gold cup at Ascot.

LONDON, June 16.—Foxhall finished fourth. Iroquois won his race in a canter. The weather was beautiful and the crowd enormous. There was a royal procession to the course, comprising the Prince and Princess of Wales, Prince and Princess Christian, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and Prince Leopold.

Germany.

LONDON, June 16.—The rejection by the Bundsrath of the accident insurance bill introduced by Bismarck is regarded as certain.

AN AMERICAN UNIVERSITY.

LONDON, June 16.—A Berlin correspondent says the idea of founding a German University in one of the Western States of America is taking practical shape. Several banking houses have proffered sympathy and co-operation to the leaders of the movement in Frankfort.

HAMBURG.

HAMBURG, June 16.—The House of Congress has adopted the treaty incorporating Hamburg in the Zollvereen by 106 to 45.

Tunis.

LONDON, June 16.—A correspondent of the Times, at Tunis, says the circular of Rouston, the French Minister, to the Foreign Consuls here, has caused great excitement among the members of the British community. They all declare the complete annexation of the regency by France would be preferable to the transfer of the Bey's rights to Rouston.

A BUFFOON AS MINISTER.

LONDON, June 16.—The Bey of Tunis has appointed a person, who for many years has been his buffoon, to the post of President of the Municipality and Administrator of Religious Corporations.

Central America.

PANAMA, June 7.—Canal matters do not progress favorably. Stations have been abandoned, brigades disbanded and many engineers have returned home and workmen have been discharged. In the meantime accounts from Paris represent everything as booming, and that adds to the disgust of the people here.

The Star and Herald says: We would like to see a little more accomplished on the Isthmus and less blowing in Paris about the business.

Russia.

BERLIN, June 16.—News from St. Petersburg states the officers and crew of the Guardship, lying off Peterkof, where the Russian Imperial family will shortly take up a residence, have been changed in consequence of the discovery of a number of revolutionary proclamations on board. There have been many arrests connected with the affair.

Bulgaria.

SOFIA, June 16.—Prince Alexander started on a tour of military inspection. At Vratza 20,000 persons welcomed him and presented addresses declaring the Bulgarians unanimously accepted the conditions the Prince named in his proclamation.

Greece.

LONDON, June 16.—The two Greek Commissioners for the delimitation of the frontier have started for Constantinople. All the Egar artillery are ordered to the frontier.

CLOSING DAYS.

Exercises in the Polytechnic Branch High School.

Children's Picnics—Preparing for Vacation in the Public Schools.

The Public Schools are generally closing today and the youngsters all over town are in holiday attire and generally feeling much better than they will six weeks hence. Despite the intense heat the picnic at the Fair Grounds, in which ten schools participate, was an immense success, and the children seemed to forget the fervency of Old Sol's rays, there being a most grateful and soothing breeze from the south to temper the intense sultriness.

The pupils assembled at their respective school houses and took the street cars by the different routes to the Fair Grounds, where they were given full liberty and gambolled about the grass, indulging in all kinds of sports, under the protecting wings of their teachers until lunch hour, when thousands of baskets were brought into requisition, and sandwiches, pies, cakes, iced lemonade and other delicacies were indulged in as refreshners for the afternoon sports. Thus reinforced they entered into the games and sports with renewed zeal, and at this writing the beautiful grounds present one of the most beautiful sights ever seen upon them. The schools participating were as follows: Franklin, 1,200 pupils, Scott H. Blewett, principal; Douglas, 700 pupils, Francis E. Cook, principal; Mullanphy, 450 pupils; Ellaardsville, 600 pupils, J. M. Thomson, principal; Pope, 1,200 pupils, J. W. Hall, principal; Cote Brilliante, 570 pupils, Della Gibbs, principal; Spring avenue, 60 pupils, under charge of Mary L. Clarke and Mary A. Strait; Bell avenue, 120 pupils, under charge of Mary L. Williams; Carr Lane, 1,100 pupils, G. V. Bailey, principal; Hamilton, 600 pupils, Mary E. McGrath, principal.

CLOSING EXERCISES.

The closing exercises at the Polytechnic Branch High School at Seventh and Chestnut streets were of a very interesting nature, being chiefly rhetorical and conducted by Principal F. Louis Soldan, assisted by Nell Parvin, Alice D. Choate, Amelia C. Fruchte, Christiana S. Hyatt, Elizabeth Mansfield, Maud L. Bereman and Miriam K. Davis. The pupils acquitted themselves splendidly, the following being the programme followed:

1. Music.
2. Declamation, "Speech at Gettysburg," Methudy.
3. Recitation, "The Patch-Work Quilt," Miss Spannagle.
4. Recitation, "The Four Wishes," Misses Meyer, McLean, Wendel and Webb.
5. Music.
6. Recitation, "The Land of Freedom" (German), Miss Foster.
7. Recitation, "The King of Denmark's Ride," Miss Cowan.
8. Declamation, "Cataline to his Friends," Morgan.
9. Music, "The Linden Tree."
10. Dialogue: "Courtship Under Difficulties," Messrs. C. Sherwood, Mabbey and Miss Buie.
11. Essay: "A Visit to Colorado," Miss Shepherd.
12. Dec.: "Regulars," Shields.
13. Rec.: "Three days in the life of Columbia," Miss Robinson.
14. Music: "Wanderings in the May Time."
15. Dec.: "Cataline's Defiance," Booch.
16. Dialogue: "Sense vs. Sentiment," by Misses Kairns, Bulman, Rawlings, Hynson, Underwood, Barron, Hanson, Yomiks, Messrs. Carroll, Southerland and E. Brown.
17. Music: Duo Concerbante, by F. Ries; for piano and violoncello, Chas. Shattinger, Phil. Anton.
18. Dec. In favor of American Independence. Chas. Sherwood.
19. Rec.: The old man in the Stylish Church, Miss May Birkecht.
20. Rec. "The Teacher's Dream," Miss Janette Cohen.
21. Music. "Angel of Patience."
22. Dec. Virginius to the Roman Army, Chas. Shattinger.
23. Rec. The Rising in 1776, Miss Birdie Vance.
24. Essay. Ladders.
25. Rec. The Hurricane.
26. Music. Holy Light.
27. Concert. Reading.
28. Music. Music on the Waves.
29. Rec.: "The Sister's Band," by Misses Fannie Coghill, Georgie Miller, Lillian Spannagle, Ella Vance, Laura Vail, Mary Zeisman, Mary Birchist, Johanna Dunplay, Alice Hirsehman.
30. Music: Old Hundred. After the conclusion of this lengthy programme some brief remarks were made by Principal Soldan and the pupils dismissed for the term.

THE SUMNER HIGH SCHOOL.

The annual closing exercises of the Sumner High School took place this morning at 9:30 a. m. A large audience was present, who were delighted with the spirited rendition of the numerous pieces upon the programme. Principal O. M. Waring deserves much credit for the condition into which he has brought the classes under his care.

BENTON SCHOOL.

At the Benton School, Ninth and Locust, class exercises of a most interesting nature were given, with the well known proficiency of the pupils of this school. Mr. Jordan, the principal, reported the enrollment at 993, the average attendance for the term being 750.

In classes 11 and 12, presided over by Misses Clements and Dickson, the following little programme had been arranged: "The Dead Doll," recitation, by Maud Muller; "Wimpey," by May Cronin; "Teacher and Scholars," by Regina O'Brien and scholars of both rooms; "Keep Still," by Otto Schmidt. Singing of two part songs very fine for such little ones. These rooms are noted as two of the best in the city in singing by note.

In room 5 there was a remarkable exhibition of geographical study, Miss Griffiths, the preceptress, having drilled the children to a remarkable point of efficience.

In rooms 1, 2 and 3 there were exhibitions in general proficiency. These rooms are under charge of Miss Margaret K. Slater, Miss Louis V. Musick and Miss Julia M. Kelly.

In room 10, Miss Augusta La Fayon, the pupils were propounding conundrums and answering them. In No. 9 Miss Stewart was awarding chromos for spelling, the bright stars being Misses Ida Raven, Lulu Russell, Olly Sherman and Maudie Fallon. In No. 12 a spelling match resulted in Misses Mamie Street, Lottie Ferry, Katie Lelan and Addie Beffa holding the fort against all others.

At the Webster School, Eleventh and Jefferson streets, the children had a very quiet day, there being no especial exercises beyond organization for the coming term. Mr. Tiller, the principal, stated that the enrollment for the term had been 2,005, the average attendance being 1,600.

At the New Madison School, Seventh near Hickory, the day was passed in quiet exercises, some of the upper rooms being decorated in honor of the coming vacation. The children were dismissed at 12 m.

At the Gamble School, Fifth and Poplar streets, everything was very quiet, nothing having been done after 12 m.

At the Everett School, Eighth street, near Cass avenue, the day was passed quietly there being no informal exercises.

At but few of the schools which indulged in yesterday's epidemic were there any especial exercises indulged in. The children were well worn out with their day's sport, and made mere formal gatherings for the purposes of farewell and dismissal.

This remark applies in general to the Ames, Ashland, Baden, Bates and the other schools generally.

'CHANGE GOSSIP.

Genial Jim Campell, of J. A. Coquard, sold at auction to-day on 'Change a couple of sheres of the Mutual Union T. Co. stock, face value $5,000 each, with 10 per cent paid in, at par.

The first new hay of the season was received to-day by John Mullally from W. S. Quidlow, Cherokee, Kas., consisting of a car of prairie, nice, dry and sound. The car sold to John J. Hilger at $11 per ton.

A reduction was made in Eastern rail rates to-day on seventh and ninth class, provisions included in former. The rates now are 23c to New York, 24c to Boston, 27c to Philadelphia, and 25c to Baltimore. The new rate is freely "cut", and grain is carried to New York at 20c, and flour at 40c. It is said that freight has also been taken to Boston at the rate of 20c per 100 pounds.

ON A JUNE MORNING.

The meadow-lands with golden king-cups glow,
Strown o'er their velvet carpet of pure green;
Mingled with snowy pink-tipped daisy stars
And yellow-petaled cowslips.

From the thorn,
The fragrant-blossomed thorn, the blackbird pipes
A carol jubilant, and close at hand
His brother-minstrel, the brown, bright-eyed thrush,
A rival challenge, with full-swelling throat,
Sounds on the fair June morning!

Bush and tree
Gleam 'neath soft silver mist; whilst incense sweet
Of countless flowerets, wet with glittering dew,
Falls grateful on the sense. And bird and flower,
Meadow and woodland, with bright beauty crowned,
Silent, yet eloquent, alike proclaim
The power and wisdom of the Maker's hand!

WOMEN AS DENTISTS.

The Russian Countess Who Graduated in New York.

From the New York Sun.

On Thursday last a woman applied to the New York College of Dentistry, East Twenty-third street and Second avenue, for admission as a student. She was of French nationality and brought testimonials showing that she had already practiced dentistry in Brazil and New Orleans. Her application was refused.

"Is it against your rules to admit women to the college?" a Sun reporter asked Dr. Frank Abbott, the Dean of the faculty.

"It is. We have never admitted but one woman, and I do not think we shall ever admit another. In 1871 we admitted the Countess Swiderska of St. Petersburg. Her application was supported by the Russian Minister at Washington and the British Consul in this city, and she presented credentials showing that she had already practised five years as a dentist. In consideration of that fact she was allowed to take a degree after one year's study. She went back to St. Petersburg, and is practising there with great success, I understand."

"Was there anything in her case to discourage you?"

"Well, there was. She was one of the smartest women I ever met. She was a young woman, and an enthusiast in her profession. There was no combating her resistless energy. She was not satisfied with class instruction or with the amount of attention other students received, but was constantly besieging members of the faculty for special favors. She would call at our houses, and would apply for special instruction on points that would occur to her, and would encroach upon the opportunities of other students. She displayed amazing application and aptitude, and at the same time gave us an extraordinary amount of trouble. I am not in the least opposed to women entering the professions, but their admission to classes of male students is altogether impracticable. We have applications every term, but we have always refused them except in that one case, and we shall never make an exception in the future."

"Is there, then, any place in this city where women can be taught dentistry?"

"I do not know of any. There may be dentists who would take women into their offices and instruct them."

"Is there any reason why women should not succeed in dentistry?"

"I do not think there is. Women possess in a high degree the delicacy of manipulation called for by dentistry. Strong, steady nerves that cannot be shaken by sudden emergencies are needed, and women can display great nerve. There is a woman assistant in Dr. Hasbrouck's office on Broadway, near Twenty-third street, and there is one employed in the rooms of the Colton Dental Association, at the Cooper Institute, and I understand that no display of suffering ever interferes with the deftness and skill with which they discharge their duties. As to the business prospects of women dentists, it should be borne in mind that there is nothing in the business to create a preference for them with any class of customers. In the practice of medicine there is a large field presented, in which the services of women physicians are likely to be preferred, when confidence in their skill is established."

"Are there any women dentists here?"

"I do not know of any women dentists, but there are women carrying on the business of dentistry. Mrs. Napoleon Preterre, after the death of her husband, kept up his business by employing dentists to attend to customers coming to the office. Mrs. Diffenbach, in Twenty-third street, and Mrs. Steinberger, in Fifty-ninth street, have in a similar manner carried on the business established by their husbands. Such a thing will not be possible hereafter, as under the law of 1872 no one can practice save those licensed by the State Dental Society, and licenses are granted only to such as can pass an examination by the Board of Censors of the society, or who hold a degree from a college recognized by the society. If a woman should qualify herself in a dentist's office to pass the examination, which is a rigid one, she would be licensed."

"What would you advise a woman to do who wants to study dentistry?"

"I advise applicants to go to Philadelphia. There are three dental colleges in that city, and one of them is open to women. It has graduated quite a number of women dentists. Our college is the only one in New York, and we do not want women students."

Dr. Emily Blackwell, of the Woman's Medical College of this city, says she does not know of any women dentists in this city. Mrs. Einstein, who studies dentistry in an office at Orange, is practicing in that town. Dr. Blackwell thinks it is a profession peculiarly suitable to women, and says that a woman dentist who graduated in Philadelphia is meeting with success in Germany, and numbers among her friends Queen Victoria's daughter, the Crown Prince of Germany.

Married Women's Slavery.

From the Iowa State Reporter.

In what respect is the condition of many a married woman better than a slave? She works hard year after year, and has a roof over her head and is provided with food; so is the slave. She must beg her "master" for a little pittance with which to buy the clothing for herself and children; the slave master looks after such wants of his chattels without their asking. She has no freedom or independence; she dare not buy a single article at the store till she gets the consent of the tyrant whom the civil law has made her husband. She can have no will about even household affairs that her husband disapproves of; she is a slave both in body and mind during his life, and at his death, if she survives him, she cannot, under the unjust and tyrannical laws of nearly all the countries in the world, sell the property which she has helped to accumulate nor control her own children without employing a lawyer and getting a special permit from the court.

Mr. Gladstone's Health Again.

London Letter to New York Times.

Mr. Gladstone's health is a subject of considerable anxiety, not to say uneasiness, among his friends. He sustained a severer shock than is generally supposed by his attack of feverish cold some months ago, and matters were not improved by his subsequent accident, when he fell down and struck his head violently against an iron scraper. Add to these physical misfortunes the ordinary wear and tear of his responsible and arduous position, and the extraordinary work and worry incidental to his conduct of the land bill and his conflicts with the Land Leaguers, and it will be seen that there is enough in all these causes to tax the vital energies even of a more than usually hardy statesman in his 72d year. Besides, it is not generally known that the Premier suffers a good deal from occasional dyscntery, in itself a very weakening complaint, and his case is aggravated by the persistence with which he refuses to take rest and desist from business often when he is quite unfit for work. Mr. Gladstone, when he fairly breaks down and is actually ill, of course gives in, and he is said to be, under such circumstances, a most docile patient, but nothing short of positive sickness will withhold him from his office in Downing street or his place in Parliament. The only sort of compromise to which he will submit is to keep reasonably early hours, and thus he is very rarely seen in the House of Commons now after midnight. Evidences of his impaired health are painfully manifest in his personal appearance and manner. His face now assumes an ashy whiteness, and that Don-like look for which he has hitherto been so remarkable is considerably tamed down. Again, there is marked failure of strength in the magnificent voice, which was, until lately, unequaled by that of any great orator of his time. It is now not uncommon for Mr. Gladstone to be almost inaudable in the gallery. Here and there the reporters fail to catch a word, and have to ask one another, "What is that he said?" a circumstance almost without precedent before this session.

Such being the case, it is hardly surprising that Mr. Gladstone's prospective retirement should once more become a subject of conversation. Of course, unless he should unfortunately be visited by another serious illness, he will not think of withdrawing from public affairs until he has carried through his great Irish measure; but it is not unlikely that after the close of the present session Mr. Gladstone will accept a peerage and lead his party in the upper house, as did his great rival, Lord Beaconsfield.

Marriage and Money.

From a New York Letter.

It would be interesting to know to what extent marriage here is affected by money. While it is generally conceded that riches do not make happiness it should be conceded that poverty, really such, causes a vast amount of wretchedness. Hundreds of couples who might be sufficiently content together if they had a moderate income are apt to be very discontented when continually pinched. Money saves friction: it prevents two persons not sympathetic from continually clashing through narrowness of circumstances. Consequently the view of many bachelors is more common-sensible, more in accordance with facts, than might appear at a passing glance.

It is commonly said, especially by promatrimonialists, that two persons can live as cheaply as one person can. No doubt a great many people have acted on this transparent fallacy, and discovered its falseness only too late. In a big city, notably New York, the saying is flagrantly untrue. Here it costs more to keep a woman than it does a man in the same social status. As long as he is single—provided he have no bad habits—he can live for very little, $1,200 to $1,500 being enough for the purpose. An ordinary ball bed-room will serve for his domicile, and he can dress respectably for $300 a year. A woman must, on the contrary, have something like a home, where she spends much of her time, and must be at much more expense for her clothes. He can save, if he be so minded, in many ways in which she cannot, for not a few of his luxuries are necessaries to her. A bachelor, in a word, who could get on very comfortably with $1,500 a year would usually be in a ceaseless strait as a husband with $2,500 a year. Comparatively few men, married or single, are capable of earning $2,500, and the single men who refrain from marriage for this reason, err, if they err at all, on the side of prudence. All things considered, it is not strange that this is a Malthusian capital. There is probably no city in civilization where matrimony, with all that belongs to it, is so much discouraged by sober and somber facts as it is in New York.

Bonner and His Ledger.

From a New York Letter.

It is said that the Ledger is in the market, but its purchase would require a large sum. Bonner bought for a trifle, and as I recall the ridiculous Merchants' Ledger (as it was then called) I wonder that he paid anything for it. Bonner has made a million out of his trashy stories, which are always found to be the most profitable. The Ledger building is a very fine investment, in addition to which there is the farm, the stables on Fifty-ninth street and other valuable property. The Independent could also be bought and so could several other so-called religious papers. Bowen made the Independent highly profitable at one time, but that was during the inflation, when everything was on a high scale. The Brooklyn scandal injured him seriously, and his puffery of Northern Pacific bonds was still more damaging. He made money out of these bonds, while others lost immensely, and, therefore, accused him of bad faith. Bowen is the only publisher who was previously in trade. He had reached wealth and distinction as the leading man in the great firm of Bowen, McNamee & Co., which was one of the most ambitious houses in this city. Twenty-four years have elapsed since it was crushed out of existence by the panic of 1857, and then Bowen, after several changes, got control of the Independent. It had proved unprofitable to its proprietors, but Bowen changed the management in a radical manner. He cut off that clique of stupid D. D.'s who were sinking it with their learned articles, and promoted Tilton to full editorship. The latter did well until he became dizzy with success. His head got full of ridiculous notions, and Victoria Woodhull bewitched him to such a degree that he played the fool, and Bowen discharged him. Neither Tilton, Beecher nor Bowen will ever be what they were previous to the great scandal.

An Extraordinary Escape.

From the San Francisco Post.

Readers of the Post will probably remember that about one year ago a man was reported drowned by jumping into the water off the San Rafael steamer while aboat to start on her trip at the foot of Cay street. The man's name was Albert Mattison, and he was in charge of the Sheriff of Mendocino county, en route for San Quentin, to serve out a long sentence for robberv. The entire police force of this city made diligent search for Mattison under the wharves and along the city front, but without success. He had on one foot an Oregon boot, made of iron, weighing twenty-five pounds, and it was supposed for a long time he was drowned, as it seemed impossible that he could escape from the weight attached to him. It has been ascertained that when he jumped overboard the tide was ebbing, and that he crept along under the water a short distance until under the wharf, when, safe from observation, he waded close in shore. He found a small boy with a boat gathering driftwood, whom he took prisoner. Mattison got into the boat and kept the boy quiet all day. At night he landed on Broadway wharf, had the boy show him a blacksmith shop, gave him $2 50 and dismissed him. At the shop he procured tools, cut loose the heavy iron fetters and got away, and has recently been heard from in Arizona.

A Waterspout in Chesapeake Bay.

From the Baltimore Sun.

There was a large and dangerous waterspout in the Chesapeake Bay, off Hooper's Island, on Thursday last. The schooner Nomini, Capt. James B. Field, from Salisbury to Baltimore, light, was in company with several other vessels at anchor about six miles from the island to await the passing over of a threatening squall, when a large waterspout suddenly descended with the rapidity of lightning and, catching the Nomini, turned her completely over. The captain and two other men who were aboard were thrown out into the water and clambered up on one of the other schooners. Though all the vessels were lying in a bunch, the Nomini was the only one the waterspout touched. The revenue steamer Thomas Ewing, Capt. S. S. Warner, found the schooner on Friday lying on her beam ends in ten fathoms water and towed her to Norman's Cove, where she took bottom.

Chinese Students Ordered Home.

From the Hartford Times, June 11.

The Chinese commission, acting under instructions from the Government of China, has ordered about forty students now in this country to learn the art of telegraphy, to return home as soon as they become conversant with it. Nearly half of the forty are in this state, and four go from New Haven. Those from that city came to Hartford today, to learn this new work, and will sail for China the first of October. The intelligence is not particularly pleasing to the young men, who have become attached to this country, and who desire to complete a college course before returning.

THE VIOLETS.

Your blossoms are fair and sweet,
You are as blue as a sapphire sea;
But I crush your life out under my feet
With the thoughts that you bring to me.

My life is wrecked since the day
That I loved you for his dear sake;
The year has brought us another May,
And kissed your blue buds awake.

And love, and honor, and pride
Are adrift on a merciless sea;
If he thinks of me, or his love has died,
It is one and the same to me.

There is nothing on earth but regret
And death is the end at last;
Happiest hearts that soonest forget
The hopes that have drifted past.

So, if you are fair and sweet,
And blue, as you used to be—
If he lives or dies—if we part or meet—
'Tis nothing on earth to me.

AVIS GRAY.

NEW YORK LOBBYISTS.

The Influence of the New York Central on Legislation.

"Gath" in Cincinnati Enquirer.

The profession of a lobbyist is quite as reputable at Albany as that of a legislator. The lobbyist has the best social circle. If he is provided with money by a rich principal, he keeps the best rooms, can always lend an impecunious friend a fifty or a hundred to go home on Saturdays; can furnish passes over almost any of the transportation companies, and he gets up such nice dinners and picnics that not to know him is to be left out of the general circle at Albany. Each of the large railroads in New York has an Albany agent, sometimes two or three. The large insurance interest keeps a man at Albany, or a circle of men to inform them of dangerous legislation. Not infrequently the agent will assist the Legislature to get up some dangerous legislation, so that the company can be bled for both.

The riches accumulated in New York City require personal representation in their almost every form at the seat of the State Government. The commerce of the city and of the Hudson River, and the commerce of the lakes, the manufacturing interests and their relation to taxes, the mercantile and banking interests in every form, the Stock Exchange, the Produce Exchange, every aggregation of rich men is liable to be overtaxed, and bills are constantly threatening, though often devised in the interests of the State revenue, but quite as often in that of some daring jobber who sees an easier way to make a living by menacing some rich interest than by his day's labor. For this reason I have never taken more than half stock in the sensation about Vanderbilt and other big men here, whom I know to be constantly menaced at Albany. I look at the class of men heading the charges and investigations against them, and generally find them to be old pensioners of Tweed—men who once climbed into the scale of wealthy robbery and corruption and were reduced to their normal level by the panic, and are now hoping to raise the multitude against some rich interest, so that in the nick of time they can save the interest and charge for it well.

No doubt a great railroad like the Central, disobeying the letter of the law every day, straining for reasons to make dividends on its huge stock lists, has forfeited its charter every day in the week. The charter reduces fares on the road to two cents a mile. The railroad dodges observance by making up its trains of Wagner palace and sleeping cars, and adding one cent a mile at least between New York and Albany. Where it builds a bridge over some tolerably important stream like the Hudson, there is a bridge company, separate from the railroad, which charges a special toll per passenger; but both things are in the hands of the same general men. Admitting all these facts, there is the great beneficence of the road, to stop which a single day would tax this State and country more than to make omissions and interpretations, provided they are not gross, in the interest of the road. The men at Albany directly employed by the railroad as lawyers are probably more respectable than that kind of a Legislature they are sent to watch. The railroad seldom asks for legislation, knowing the immense cost of it, and is content to stop the black-mail with as little expense as possible. Hence, to keep off a hundred harpies who would like to represent it, the road employs a single man with a fat salary himself, a legislator once, and familiar with politics, and says to him: "Relieve our minds. Be prudent as possible as to money; act on your own responsibility. Draw on us for necessaries."

Fashion's Latest Fancies.

From the New York Times.

Among the novelties in dress ornaments are white or gray mother-of-pearl rings, destined for the cordelieres, which lace over the waists. These rings have two holes, like ordinary buttons, to fasten them against the dress. Before the waist is laced it must be hooked underneath by means of a false band. Another new article is a double fastening of mother-of-pearl or passementerie. The waist closes down the front as it does for the pearl rings, and the ornaments are down the center of the waist and suits. White mother-of-pearl clasps are charming over light-colored costumes. A blue jacket just completed has these fastenings all the way down the front. On the sleeves, revers and pockets are the same ornaments.

The Jersey is still worn. It is now of beads, and is cut something like a child's apron without sleeves. In the back are two whalebones covered with silk for the lacing of the waist. The neck piece is of beaded fringe, and the same trimming is on the lower part of the basque. This waist, when examined in the hand, seems very odd, but when worn it is most elegant, as it sets perfectly in to the figure. The plainest waist can be made handsome in a few seconds by means of this beaded garment. It requires no fitting, covers everything, and is consequently most serviceable.

"Viola de nonne" suits are the fancy of the season. They are lined with dark colors and are very effective. One of these is of colored "viole," with blended stripes in bayadere style, lined with dark green silk. The material is very fine, and the dark shade of the silk showing through has a most pleasing appearance. Mixed with this suit are dark green moire antique draperies. For evening wear, cream-colored "viole" is employed, with red, blue, or pink linings. These suits are also quite pretty all in one shade, trimmed with lace to match in color. Walking dresses have the skirts trimmed to the top. A scarf or small tunique is generally taken over the hips, and forms in the back a bow. The waists are mostly all pointed in front, and have in the back small basques. The lower parts of these are sometimes covered by the scarfs above described. Sleeves are made tighter than ever. Only short skirts are worn for walking purposes. "Tournures" are becoming more prominent every day, and are even exaggerated under the dresses taken tightly in to the figure. There have never before been such beautiful frimmings for batiste suits as are now made. The most varied embroideries are used for this purpose. One of the most novel in character is called "broderie jeu de cartes," which is used to border the flounces and to trim the waist. Some of the new silk suits are trimmed with a great profusion of imitation old Italian embroidery.

The Jockey Who Rode Foxhall.

From the New York Herald.

George Fordham, the rider of Foxhall, was a jockey when Archer was in his cradle. He is about forty years of age and has been riding for the past twenty-five years. He jumped into prominence soon after appearing on the turf. He is a man of great resolution and has the sobriquet of the "Demon Rider." His first important win was the Cambridgeshire Handicap in 1867 with Odd Trick. In 1859 he won the Thousand Guineas on Mayonnaise and the Oaks on Summerside. His first success in the Two Thousand Guineas was on Vauban, the Duke of Beaufort's horse, in in 1867, and his second capture of this prize was in 1880 on Petronel, also the property of the same nobleman. He has won the One Thousand Guineas race five times and the Oaks five times, the last being this year's race on Thebais. He has won every important race annually run in England and France except the Doncaster St. Leger. Fifteen years ago a struggle broke out as to getting first place on the annual list of winning jockeys between Fordham and "Jimmy" Grimshaw, and large sums of money were waged upon the result year after year. When Mr. Lefevre took his horses to England during the Franco-Russian war Fordham was his first jockey. Fordham retired from the turf at the time the French stable was broken up. He had secured a competency, which Lefevre was instructed to invest and it was lost. Being thus reduced in circumstances the jockey returned to the turf. His retirement occurred in 1875 and he came out again in 1878. That year he rode fifty-eight winners; in 1879 he won forty-seven victories, and 105 in 1880, his record for the last year being only beaten by Archer, who scored 120. His first Derby running in 1879 was a catch-mount, as none of his regular employers had a horse fit to run, and Baron Rothschild put him upon Sir Bevys, against whom the odds were 20 to 1. Fordham was successful on Beaudesert in the Middle Park Plate. Fordham knows the road to the winning post for the Grand Prix well enough, having steered Fervaeques to victory in 1867, following that up in 1868 by winning on the unfortunate Marquis of Hastings' horse, The Earl.

English Church Livings.

From the New York Times.

Any one who has ever looked far into the subject of Church livings in England has met with many strange and incongruous things. Even the English people in considerable numbers, slow as they are to change a system that has been sanctioned by custom and time, some forty or fifty years ago recognized the justice of reform and took steps to turn the Church income into one common fund for distribution according to the needs and deserts of the various parishes and their vicars. But the effort brought forth no substantial result, and, so far as can be learned, it has never been renewed in any effective and determined way. At the present time a certain living of the class known as "sinecure livings" is for sale. It has many times been disposed of at auction and strangely enough no mention of it has been made in the Clergy List. It was advertised to be sold last July at auction, but from some cause it was not sold, and now the agents say the price has been reduced from £6,500 to £5,500. Since the net income is set down at £650, the purchaser, at £5,500, would realize a comfortable 12 per cent on his money. No duties, it is said, attach to the holding of this living beyond the agreeable one of receiving the interest. Even residence is not imposed. For something like four centuries this living has been a sinecure in the Church of England. It appears to have been usually purchased by ladies for family purposes, being of the class known as "donative livings," which entitle the holders to present any clergyman whom they like, and this whether the Bishop like him or not. Moreover the holder may enter into a bargain with a clergyman to pay him a certain fixed salary—as much less apparently than the 12 per cent interest as he can induce the clergyman to agree to—and he may thus put the balance into his own pocket. Before Parliament there is now a bill abolishing sinecure livings, but of what its final fate will be few individuals are yet sure. Should it pass there might be some hope that a reform of the whole Church living system would ultimately be undertaken. No reasonable man, however, is likely to indulge far his hopes that the English Parliament will abolish anything that has 400 years of existence behind it.

Stored Electricity in Use.

From the London Engineering.

The electric tramway which Dr. Werner Siemens has constructed in Berlin, between the suburbs of Lichtenfeld and Cadettenhaus, is now regularly opened for passengers, and is giving great satisfaction. The rails are of the ordinary railway pattern, but the gauge is only three feet three inches. A single car is propelled by the current at an average speed of nine miles an hour, though this rate can be doubled if necessary. A similar line has been erected at the Crystal Palace, Sydenham, as an attraction for visitors. but it is probably the electric tramways will be practically introduced into this country before many years are past. Velocipedes are now so common that it is not surprising to find that electricity has been applied to their propulsion. M. Trouve, the well known French electrician, recently drove an English tricycle through the streets of Paris by means of electricity stored in a Plante secondary battery and a pair of Deprez electric motors. The tricicle, with its occupant and apparatus, weighed 400 pounds, and went at the speed of an ordinary cab; but with some modification of the apparatus M. Trouve hopes to attain a rate of twelve or fifteen miles an hour. The new secondary battery of M. Faure will also help his purpose, and we may anticipate that velocipedes driven by electric power will by and by prove useful to the invalid or the weakly. In Paris, too, electricity has been applied to work an air compressor at the toy balloon factory of MM. Chauchard et Cie., behind the Hotel du Louvre. The spare steam power of the engines has been utilized by two Gramme machines, one of which generates the current and the other transforms it into mechanical work. The energy thus transmitted is about a horse-power per minute.

Max Strakosch's Failure.

From the New York Herald.

The insolvent schedules of Max Strakosch, the well known impresario, in the matter of his assignment to Charles H. Neilson, were filed yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas. Mr. Strakosch states his liabilities at $37,466 64; nominal assets at $14,000, and real assets at $8,200. Among Mr. Strakosch's creditors may be mentioned the prima donna Marie Roze, to whom he owes $1,816 85, Mlle. Ostave Torriana $1,600, and Mlle. Anna de Belocca $1,529 28. Among other creditors are Stout & Thayer $11,012 10, for moneys advanced: Charles Wehle $4,500 for legal services, and the assignee $1,500 for money advanced and for services. The assets consist of the complete vocal and orchestral scores of seventy operas and sheet music which he says is worth $4,000, but if sold would not bring over $1,200. In addition to this he also has the complete wardrobes for the operas "Aida," "Carmen," "Lohengrin" and others, which he rates at $10,000, but which if sold he thinks would not bring over $4,000.

Mosquitoes in England.

From the New York Tribune.

A French invasion could not have caused greater consternation in London than has been created by the appearance of one or two apparently genuine mosquitoes, if the space accorded in the papers to these unwelcome visitors can be accepted as evidence. Various theories have been advanced to account for their arrival, and some persons have even gone so far as to declare they must have survived a passage across the Atlantic in the trunks of some criminally careless or wantonly malicious American. It does not appear that the invasion may not be due to some traveling Venetian or other child of sunny Italy, where there are more mosquitoes to the square yard than even the Jersey Meadows can boast; but notwithstanding this possibility America is held guilty. The mosquito hasn't a friend in the world, but he goes through life as blithely as a plumber, and if he has made up his mind to the conquest of England it will avail nothing to swear at him.

An Ethiopian Polyglot.

From the Washington Post.

De Winter Dumas, a coal black negro, has recently been appointed to a $1,000 clerkship in the Pension Office. Dumas is a prodigy. He was born in London, England, and graduated from Trinity College, Dublin. He is said to speak with ease the French, German, Italian and Portuguese languages, and to be conversant with Latin and Greek. He is an expert in short-hand, being able to write 200 words per minute, and his hand writing is both flowing and uniform. Dumas states that at one time he was an official reporter to the House of Commons. He came to this country several years ago, and is now about thirty-five years old. A few years ago he married, selecting for a wife a white woman, who is said to be quite intelligent and refined.

THE CHRISTY COLT.

A Conclusion to the Investigation of the Riding by Downing.

The officers of the Jockey Club have talked over the colt race of Monday, and concluded to let the matter drop. The Christys adhere to their expressed dissatisfaction with the manner in which the colt was handled. In the absence of direct evidence the investigation did not go beyond a general discussion. Downing's side of the case was helped out by some of the Kentuckians who gave him a good character and said that he supported his mother from his earnings as a jockey. It was told that at Lexington Capt. Billy Conner, the starter, made Downing a present for being the best behaved jockey at the meeting. The owner of Lizzie S. says he put the boy on her, although he made five pounds overweight, because he had confidence in him.

CARONDELET JOTTINGS.

The monotony which usually prevails in the vicinity of the intersection of Franklin street and the Iron Mountain Railroad tracks was relieved last night by an exciting saloon fight. Two young men named Bergfield and Lohrens were the participants, and the appearance which they present this morning indicates that the furniture of the saloon was used with effect. Bergfield was worsted in the melee, and he sought satisfaction by swearing out a warrant against Lobrens charging him with assault with intent to kill. The case will be tried to-morrow.

Yesterday evening Mr. Mott, Superintendent of the South St. Louis Railroad Company, left his horse and buggy standing in front of the stables. The horse became frightened and dashed through the large door of the stable and down the aisle through which the horses are brought to and from the cars. A team of horses were coming in the opposite direction, and when both had reached about the centre of the aisle one of the shafts of the buggy was driven about two feet into the breast of one of the horses, killing him almost instantly. The other horse escaped with slight injuries, but the buggy was totally demolished. The stalls in the aisle were occupied by about fifty horses when the rig started on its rampage through the stables, but only a few of them were scratched by the buggy. The dead animal was valued at $125. The hostler who was driving the team had a narrow escape but saved himself by climbing over one of the stalls.

London and New York.

"Gath" in Cincinnati Enquirer.

The new census returns give to London 4,814,571 inhabitants. In 1871 its population was 3,254,260; in 1861 it was 2,803,989. More than five hundred and sixty thousand souls were added to the number of inhabitants during the past ten years, and more than a million during the past twenty years. The rate of increase has been greater since 1871 than it was during the preceding decade. This is true of only five others of the large English cities—namely, Liverpool, Birmingham, Nottingham, Norwich and Hull. When we reflect that a population greater than that of Chicago has been added to London in ten years, and a population nearly as great as that of New York has been added to it in twenty years, it does look as if the city on the Thames has been advancing with very rapid strides. And yet its pace seems slow when compared with that of our own metropolis. Since 1870 the increase in the population of New York has been less than a quarter of a million, while the increase in the population of London has been more than half a million. But while the rate of increase has been 17 per cent in London it has been more than 22 per cent in New York.

The Planets Swerving the Sun Off His Center Nearly a Million Miles,

Producing a Marked Decrease in the Terrestrial Temperature,

And Playing Havoc With Human Health.

The conjunction of the planets with the sun, it is reasoned by those who have made it a careful study, is having a very marked effect on that luminary. It is estimated that the sun has been drawn from its place 700,000 miles. If this is so the effect on the earth must be marked. As a matter of fact it is said by meteorologists that the average temperature during the past winter had been several degrees lower than for many years, and the effect upon humanity has been seen in a great increase of mortality. The winter has been a long one and a cold one. The summer promises to be a long and hot one. This means increased mortality. It is therefore of the greatest importance that the health should be carefully guarded. Do not permit the slightest approach of disease. It has become an admitted fact that nothing so thoroughly restores and keeps the body in perfect health as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.

D. W. Bartine, M. D., D. D., who resides in Orange, N. J., after a careful experience, has given the following facts to the public:

Some three months ago I found myself suffering from Bright's disease—Albuminuria. By the use of a reliable test I found albumen in the urine, and in some slight degree in a few instances in a coagulated state. I suffered from dropsy, particularly about the ankles, slight pains about the kidneys, a derangement of digestion, great dryness of the skin, at times much thirst, and, of course, a gradual failing of strength. This was about the state of things when I commenced using Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. I took about six tablespoonfuls every day for a week, when I found all my symptoms decidedly improved, and at the end of two weeks it was difficult to detect any trace of albumen. Having imprudently taken cold, I had a slight relapse some two weeks ago, when I began again using the medicine, and am now as well as ever.

The conclusion from the above statement and the facts which accompany it must be evident. Disease is in our midst, and we must guard ourselves in time. A little precaution may save severe sickness, perhaps death.

THE WENTWORTH,
NEWCASTLE, N. H.

This Hotel will open June 18th. It has accommodations for 400 guests, and offers more attractions for the pleasure and comfort of its patrons than any other seaside resort on the Atlantic Coast. Its high situation affords beautiful views both inland and seaward, its healthful atmosphere, the easy manner in which it can be reached, its advantages for boating, fishing and bathing, excellent drives and attractive walks, all combine to make it one of the most charming places on the New England coast. The house contains every modern appliance. It has spacious and well ventilated rooms, furnished in black walnut, WITH THE BEST OF BEDS, large parlors, halls and rooms for social enjoyment, passenger elevator operated by steam, Music Hall for dancing and theatricals.

An Orchestra of twenty members of acknowledged professional ability, under the direction of Mr. John J. Braham (Musical Director of the Boston Museum), will furnish music for the season.

The veranda, fifteen feet in width, surrounding the house, gives an extended promenade of over 1,000 feet in length, while the view is unexcelled in beauty and grandeur. Bowling Alleys. Billiard Room. Steam Yacht for excursions, sail and row boats under the direction of trusty and experienced men. First-class livery and boarding stable. Grounds lighted by the electric light. New York and Boston Stock reports received every hour.

The Wentworth is situated three miles from Portsmouth, and is reached by means of the Eastern Railway in two hours' ride from Boston, and is equally distant from Portland, Maine. It is four hours' ride from the Fabyan House by way of the White Mountain Notch and North Conway. It is also reached from the White Mountain range by the Boston, Concord and Montreal and the Concord Railways, and by the Grand Trunk by way of Portland.

At the station in Portsmouth the coaches of the Hotel are always in waiting.

THE NOTARIES.

A Scant Supply For the City Hall Officers.

Governor Crittenden's apportionment of the Notaries allows the City Hall two, but rather singularly they are both held in the office of the Assessor and Collector of Water Rates. One of them is held by Mr. Allen and the other by Gen. Stephenson's son. It was thought one of the appointments would be given to the Mayor's office and Mr. Ewing addressed the Governor a lettre on the subject. There is a good deal of swearing done in the offices of the Recorder of Voters, the Board of Public Improvements and the City Register, but hereafter the "so-help-you's" will all have to be taken by Allen and Stephenson. If these two gentlemen continue to have a monopoly of the affidavit making at the City Hall they will add handsomely to their official salaries. A few of the recipients of the Governor's favors express surprise and declare the honor unexpected. For every one of these surprises there are a hundred others felt by those who were assured their applications would receive consideration and who search the list in vain for their patronymics.

Corpus Christi.

The festival of Corpus Christi was celebrated to-day in all the Catholic churches with becoming honors. In a special manner the feast was observed at the Sacred Heart Convent, where the Children of Mary assembled and mass was solemnized at 8 o'clock. The Children of Mary is a sodality of ladies comprising the flower of the Catholic faith in this city, and to-day is one of the special festivals of the association. At the Franciscan Church on Stringtown Road the day was honored with solemn high mass, which continued all through the morning.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Ungar & Co. made the lowest bids to print in book form the Mayor's message and accompanying documents. The bid was $1,750.

The pupils of the Webster, Ames, Dodier and Penrose Schools spent the day yesterday at the Zoological Garden and Fair Grounds.

The Victoria Cricket Club meets at the Golden Lion, Seventh and Pine streets, to-night. The election of officers will occur at this meeting.

A negro lad named George Baker was yesterday afternoon locked up in the Four Courts for opening letters of O. L. Hurlburt, No. 923 Olive street.

The St. Louis Graphic Club met at their rooms on Olive street last night. "Maud Muller" was the subject for illustration and Mr. A. J. Mitchell was the host of the evening.

In the latter part of July the Frolic Club will give a grand moonlight picnic. This is a novel sort of entertainment and is looked forward to with interest.

A committee from the Humane Society met with the Livery Stable-keepers' and Undertakers' Association at Wengel's Hall last night. The societies will shortly perfect plans for co-operation.

A meeting of the committee of model of the Blair Monument Association was held at No. 421 Olive street yesterday. Seven studies for competition were presented. Awards have not yet been made.

Ellen Hubbard, colored, after serving as a domestic in the family of B. H. Hayes, No. 3119 Laclede avenue, took her departure with two valuable dresses. She was arrested and the property recovered.

A meeting of the Board of Public Improvements was held yesterday afternoon and bids were opened for reconstructing and repairing sewers, furnishing iron work for sewers and cut stone work for sewers.

Twenty-five young gentlemen last night received the degree of Bachelor of Law at Memorial Hall. They had successfully completed the course of study at the St. Louis Law School of the Washington University.

Councilman De Menil's street-paving committee met again yesterday. Mr. Pearce, the asphaltum block man, Mr. Shaw, the mashed granite man, and Mr. Meny, President of the Western Paving Company, were before the committee.

Mayor Ewing has reported to the St. Louis Women's Sabbath Association that, in the opinion of the Police Board, the proper way to proceed against Sabbath-breakers is to bring them before the Grand Jury.

The seventh annual gathering of the Independent Order of Foresters to-morrow promises, if careful preparations signify anything, to be one of the most interesting yet held. This is the seventh anniversary meeting, and will be held at the Fair Grounds.

Ellen Farrell, a middle-aged colored woman, was found at the corner of Seventh and Franklin avenue with a frightful wound in her head from which the blood was freely flowing. She was drunk, and could give no account of the accident. Officer Church took her to the Dispensary, where the wound was dressed.

Mr. Michael Carroll presided last evening at a large meeting of the Irish-American people of the Annunciation Parish at the school hall. Mr. J. O'Neill Ryan, of the Young Ireland Land League, delivered an address which was well received. Judge P. J. Taaffe also spoke briefly. The meeting adjourned until Wednesday, the 29th inst.

At 5:30 last evening George Williams was found guilty of grand larceny, in the Criminal Court, and was given two years in the Penitentiary. When he heard the verdict he sprang to his feet demanding if there was any protection for an insane man. He refused to go into the jail, and it required the united efforts of Deputy Sheriffs Kirby and Collins to put him back.

RIVER NEWS.

The Illinois can be chartered for excursion trips.

Less than seven feet of water at Pittsburg to-day and falling fast.

Com. J. N. Williamson and family left for Minnesota this morning.

The Fannie Tatum, Capt. Best, leaves for St. Paul to-day at 4 p. m.

The Maggie P. is out on the Prof. Morse docks undergoing repairs.

Hereafter the Phil. E. Chappell will leave for the Osage every Wednesday.

Capt. Thos. L. Davidson's Centennial will be the New Orleans Anchor Line boat for Saturday.

Capt. Ed. C. Carroll, General Superintendent of the Parisot Line, returns to Vicksburg to-day.

The M. V. T. Co. announce the Port Eads to leave for New Orleans this evening with a tow of barges.

The fine Anchor Line steamer Gold Dust, Capt. Jno. T. McCord, departs for Vicksburg this evening.

Capt. Whitledge now commands the Fannie Lewis. She leaves for Kansas City in the Star Line Saturday.

Capt. Ed. C. Carroll and Theodore Zeighler drove out to Cote Brilliante last evening and called on Capt. Wm. H. Blake.

Capt. J. H. Andrews has the steamer H. J. Dickey here with a cargo of lumber from his own mills, which are situated in Cole's Creek.

The Bright Light made the run from St. Louis to Cairo, with 500 tons of freight aboard, in 17 hours, and took aboard 500 tons between the points named.

Mr. Jno. A. Scudder was up at Alton yesterday and was present at the commencement exercises of the Wyman Institute, of which his son Charles is a student.

The boilermakers have resumed work, and the Rohan Bros. are running a full force of men. They have a large amount of work on hand, including several steamboats.

The popular steamer John L. Rhoads goes to Pittsburg to-morrow. H. B. Cock commands and J. C. Fisher is chief clerk. She has good accommodations for passengers.

Jos. F. Wangler's boiler yard is again as noisy as ever. After being out on a strike for five weeks the men have returned to work. John O'Brien's men have also resumed work.

The river is again falling with 22 2-10 feet by the gauge. The Upper Mississippi and Illinois continue to swell slowly, but it is almost certain now that the decline will go on here until low water is reached.

Capt. Julius Wehrman, Superintendent of the American Transportation Company, returned yesterday from New Orleans. The J. W. Garrett and barges is here and the Raven is on her way up. Both belong to the line.

After this week the Chas. P. Chouteau will make excursion trips for the accommodation of the public twice a week. She will leave the foot of Pine street at 4 p. m. Mondays and Saturdays, returning at 10 p. m. Fare, 50 cents.

Capt. Jno. Smoker, an old-time Captain in the New Orleans and Vicksburg trade, but for some time an Arkansas granger, was around among the boys in New Orleans the other day. He says time doesn't change things with him; he likes it just as well as ever.

Allen & Blaisdell are doing a heavy business at their South St. Louis iron boat yard. They are transforming an old iron gun boat into a transfer boat for Capt. Jno. N. Boffinger, and will launch an iron snag boat for the Government in a couple of weeks. The new craft goes to work in the Red River, and will be 146 feet long by 36 feet beam. The firm also have other heavy contracts on hand, and are working a large number of mechanics.

The latest novelty in the way of art is "changeable paint," invented by a chemist of Paris. Mullen & Hoppius, of this city, are about to introduce it on the boats and will begin to paint some of the anchors and letter some of the Anchor Line boats with it. The paint in open daylight appear cream color, but turns to a purplish bright light in the night. It would be an excellent thing to paint buoys with. They would shine in the night.

Vicksburg Herald: An iron shaft of the steamer Grand Duke, a large and elegant side-wheel steamer, which, previous to the war, ran in the St. Louis and New Orleans trade, was brought down on the E. C. Carroll yesterday. During the war, and just previous thereto, this fine steamer was run up into Yazoo River and burned by the Confederates, to keep the Yankees from capturing and using her. Its companion will be brought down next week. We understand there are many such relics as these strewn about here and there at the bottom of the Yazoo, both in the shape of big steamships, gunboats and passenger packets.

A Pittsburg telegram of Tuesday says: "The Pittsburgh departed for St. Louis this afternoon with 600 tons and engagements below. The Batchelor, Graham and Granite State are due to-night. The Granite State will be the next boat out for St. Louis, leaving on Friday. The towboat Joe Walton arrived this afternoon, 63 hours out from Louisville, and 50 hours from Cincinnati. Capt. John Porter's new towboat will have steel boilers, steel shaft, steel wrists, steel T-heads and steel piston rod. The hull will be launched about the middle of July. The towboat Pacific departed with 6 barges of steel rails consigned to Memphis and St. Louis. The total coal on the present water foots up 6,026,000 bushels, of which 1,462,000 go to Cincinnati and the rest to Louisville. The coal shipments this month aggregate in round numbers 11,009,000 bushels.

FAST TIME ON THE HUDSON MADE BY THE MARY POWELL.

"The fastest trip of the Mary Powell that I know of," said Mr. Fletcher, "was made on August 6, 1874. The time was taken from the moment she headed up stream until she reached Poughkeepsie, and was in all three hours and thirty-nine and one half minutes. The time of her stops was taken, and this deducted made her actual running time three hours and nineteen minutes, or just about twenty-three miles an hour. This includes slowing down in approaching the landings. I have no doubt that at times she worked up to twenty-five miles an hour on that trip, wind and tide helping her. In dead water I do not suppose she can make over twenty-two or twenty-three miles an hour."

"Is that the fastest time ever made by a boat in these waters?"

"Well, the new boat Albany at the close of last season ran to Poughkeepsie in three hours and thirteen minutes, but she had no passengers, made a straight run and carried forty-five pounds of steam. They were taking her up the river to lay her up during the winter, and speeded her to see what she could do. The Albany ought to be a little faster than the Mary Powell from her build and machinery. The truth is, the Albany, the Mary Powell and the Chauncey Vibbard are all very fast boats, that can make over twenty miles an hour regularly. Our river boats never race, and we can't tell what really is their best time."

A RACE-COURSE managed by pool sellers, where professional gamblers enter and run horses as they would throw three-card monte, may flourish for a season, but the tortuous roots are not likely to strike deep into public confidence.

THE Washington Grand Jury that is to enjoy the felicity of investigating the Star Route thieves is decorated, it is said, with a couple of public spirited gentlemen who had some of the pork in a small way. They will not be ferocious for indictments.

IN the heat of the midsummer, when sickness is prevalent on every hand, the City Dispensary is to be closed for the want of an appropriation. If an epidemic of cholera visits us the authorities will probably loosen the municipal purse-strings.

FIRST in the field is the Chicago Times with a ticket for 1881—Iroquois and Foxhall. After having voted for so many years for asses ambitious to live in the White House, the American people ought to gladly avail themselves of this opportunity to do a good turn for a couple of well-meaning horses.

THERE is a beautiful feature about Mr. SCUDDER'S amended compromise between the city and the St. Louis Gas Company, which causes it to shine with a radiance equaled only by a morning star. It is to be a solemn contract, but the city will reserve the right to annul it whenever it sees fit. A handy "contract" that.

THE distinguished abstainer, Mr. GRISCOM, who is laboring in Chicago to beat Dr. TANNER'S starving time, is a man of ponderous paunch and oleaginous trimmings. He is simply living off his fat like a hybernating bear. At last accounts his supply of adipose tissue was running short. He lacked sufficient strength to sit up and read a dull Chicago newspaper, and his voice sounded like a March wind complaining at a key-hole.

THE New York Tribune is advertising for a Republican who feels proud of Senator CONKLING in his present condition. Our information is that PLATT'S heart still swells with pride when the name of the great Senator is mentioned in his presence, and his eye sparkles when the form of the noble CATALINE falls across the line of his vision. PLATT is a good Republican. He stands by the Constitution and the amendatory patches thereon.

CHARLEY FOSTER is having a trying time in his canvass for Governor of Ohio. He tells the temperance people that he never looks upon wine when it gives its color in the cup, but when he meets on the sly one of the red-blooded boys with a generous stomach, he stows away a gill of mellow Bourbon with the grace of a stage-driver, and the wink that follows would make a circus-clown envious. This is what he calls his great dual act.

IT is announced from Washington that the liberal beer-drinking Germans of the country are disposed to quarrel with GARFIELD because he has appointed a rabid cold-water man as Consul General to Berlin. He hails from Indiana and his name is KAHLO. The drinking element of the Republican party was beautifully and amply recognized when STEVE HURLBURT was appointed Minister to Peru, and the old guzzlers should pause and give the temperance people a chance.

THE shattered remnant of the heroic Greenback party of Ohio met in Convention yesterday and placed a full ticket in the field. Prosperity cannot weary nor experience enlighten, it seems, the man who once gets the idea crosswise in his limited brain that a Government stamp is all that is necessary to make a cabbage leaf as powerful in commerce as a chunk of rare and precious metal. There is nothing so singular in the world as the survival of false ideas. It is said that Uncle GEORGE KNAPP still believes that the world is flat, and it wouldn't surprise us in the least at any day to hear that a band of Pagans had set up a temple to Isis under the shadow of the Pantheon in Rome, and had issued an address of fealty to Jupiter and the assistant gods on High Olympus.

THERE are many married women engaged in teaching in Cincinnati, and a resolution has been adopted by the School Board for the dismissal of them all at the close of the present school year. The question as to the fitness of a married woman for teaching will doubtless remain a debatable one. The ordinary reasons assigned for a crusade against them are that they are taking up the places which belong rightfully to girls without other means of support; that they ought to be devoting themselves to the duties of their homes, and that the cares of a husband and family leave them little energy for the performance of school work. These considerations are not without force, but the Solons of Cincinnati set their reform upon different grounds. They have dismissed the married women in the interest of morality. One of that class taught until within two months of maternity, and so shocked the delicate sensibilities of the trustees that they are almost ready to ostracise every school-marm who is not a maid or a widow. There may be something immoral in the idea of motherhood, but we think a discussion in the Cincinnati papers on this subject will do more hurt to the children of the schools than a score of married teachers would.

OF course we are racked from end to end with pain at the thought of having done Counsellor GARVEY the injustice to print a card on the Irish land question with his name signed to it which was a bold and impious forgery. But it will not do for the Globe-Democrat to chide us because we were not able to detect the fraud in the loose and incoherent sentences, so unlike those which flow from the pen of the Queen's Counsel when laboring under the inspiration of a gigantic subject. We used to be familiar with the terse and vigorous style of the introspective Counsellor, but it occurred to us that perhaps age and the vicissitudes of life in a new and unsettled country were telling on him. The critics claim that Lord BEACONSFIELD'S last novel compared but illy with the idyllic "Henrietta Temple" written in the freshness and vigor of hopeful manhood, and it must be admitted that the editor of the Globe-Democrat writes now with less vim and attention to style than he did twenty-five years ago. It was hardly to be expected that Counsellor GARVEY would write as smoothly about an exciting political question to-day as he would have written of an Irish fox-hunt when he was the compeer of O'CONNELL and FITZGERALD at the Irish bar. However, we owe the Counsellor an apology.

PERSONAL.

—Mr. Hayes is not quite out of the ring, after all. He has been nominated for re-election as a Trustee of Kenyon College.

—The old reliable New Jersey sea-serpent has turned up again, and the New York papers are telling about what it looks like.

—Mrs. Garfield is much better, being able now to walk about her room. Her physician thinks that she will be well enough to go into the country next week.

—The Louisville Courier-Journal states that "more whisky will be manufactured in Kentucky this season than ever before." The outlook for Mr. Watterson is certainly a very pleasing one.

—Nilsson is coming to this country again. Nilsson is a fair singer, but her great fame rests on the artistic manner in which she can kick over a piano-stool when her Scandinavian temper is ruffled.

—A Washington paper states that "the curtain of regret has been drawn over society circles" by the departure of a young lady for her home in Ohio. Not wishing to injure the paper its name is suppressed.

—Henry Crum, a lawyer of Newcastle, Pa., was recently mistaken for a horse-thief by a band of vigilantes, and nearly killed before he succeeded in proving his identity. Lawyers should stay at home nights.

—It was very kind of Gen. Sherman to advise the members of West Point graduating class "not to look down on citizens." In return, citizens will please not look down on the brave veterans fresh from a terrific struggle with geometry and algebra.

—Minnie Palmer, the actress, is under $5,000 bonds to her manager not to marry for five years. Miss Anthony has our earnest congratulations. She and Gail Hamilton should agitate this subject and induce all girls to follow Miss Palmer's noble example. There is no telling what might happen if Susie and Gail were the only marriageable women in America.

He Can Make More Money.

ST. LOUIS, June 15, 1881.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I wish to state in justice to yourself and my son that the latter discontinued carrying the Evening Chronicle and carried the POST-DISPATCH on his route simply because his readers desired it and also because he could thereby do better and make more money. There was no bribe either offered or received; it was done purely of his own volition and with my full authority and consent.

WILLIAM J. BROWN.

A Good Thing for the Shadow.

ST. LOUIS, June 16, 1881.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I saw in the POST-DISPATCH the other day that some interested parties had been hiring a detective to follow one of the Police Commissioners around and see where he went and what he did. It strikes me that was a good idea—for the benefit of the detective's soul. I venture to say that the shadow hasn't done so much church going in ten years as during the weeks he kept close behind Mr. Kinkead.

IROQUOIS.

Blabbing on Each Other.

From the Cincinnati Commercial.

One of the items from England is that the gentlemen of the gaspipe artillery are going to tell on all their friends. England has had one consolation in the Irish disturbances—abundance of information.

Entirely Too Cheap.

From the Philadelphia Times.

When it is remembered that members of the New York Legislature have brought as much as $50,000, it is not much wonder that the story about buying one for two thousand should be received with suspicion.

The Chicago Style.

From the Atlanta Constitution.

There is such bad feeling among the Chicago editors that they refuse to drink beer at each other's expense. This, we believe, is what is called a Chicago vendetta.

Whisper It Gently.

From the New York Tribune.

It should be gently whispered to Gen. Grant that Brother-in-Law Cramer does not constitute in himself a sufficient basis for an issue in American politics.

A Feeble Report.

From the Chicago Times.

Badeau's three-volume puff of Grant is already burned powder.

Court Crumbs.

The Public Administrator has taken charge of the estate of Wm. Costello.

Wm. Zachritz was to-day enrolled a member of the bar in Circuit Court No. 1.

Letters of administration were granted to-day to Lisette Voelker, executrix of Elenora Roemmich's estate, valued at $2,000.

Final judgment in favor of Spalding and Mapleson was entered to-day in Judge Adams' Court in the opera-seat case brought by Major Pearce.

The will of Patrick Mackle, admitted to probate to-day, provides that all the estate shall pass to the widow, with John A. Nies as her adviser.

The following divorce cases were dismissed to-day for want of prosecution: Lewis vs. Lewis; Buchanan vs. Buchanan; Keeshan vs. Keeshan; Barry vs. Barry.

ECLECTICS IN COUNCIL.

Annual Convention of the National Eclectic Medical Association.

Remarkable Operation on a Blind Man---Discussion on Patent Medicines.

The Indiana and Georgia Colleges Admitted to Membership.

Some Lively Personalities—Full Report of the Proceedings.

The Convention of the National Eclectic Medical Association reopened its session promptly at 9 a. m.

The hall was filled with delegates, but the sprinkling of ladies was not so large. Several new members reported and took their seats in the Convention.

Rev. Dr. Post opened the exercises with prayer, after which Dr. Wilder, the Secretary, read communications which came in since last meeting. Dr. Smith, of Indiana, moved that Dr. Frazee, of Chicago, one of the charter members of the Association, be made an honorary member. It was so ordered. The same was done in the case of Dr. Chas. Band, of Nebraska.

Dr. N. G. Smith, of Indiana, presented his report of the status of eclectic medicine in his State. There are 566 practising eclectic physicians, 378 of whom are graduates. A State Association had been formed since the last meeting and a college opened.

Dr. Olin asked permission to perform an operation on a blind patient before the Convention. The trouble was adhesion of the iris to the posterior wall of the cornea, the result of ulceration, and producing total blindness. Dr. Olin announced that he proposed to make an incision through the ciliar border, draw out the iris and cut off a piece of it, thus allowing the light to pass through to the retina. If the lens is in healthy condition the pupil would see again. If not, he would not. The patient, a young man from Charleston, Ills., was then stretched upon an improvised table and the doctors crowded around him. The operation was closely watched by all, including several ladies who were in attendance at the Convention. Chloroform was administered and a deep cut made near the eye, through which the iris was drawn and cut. The operation lasted about twenty minutes and was pronounced eminently successful.

After the operation Dr. Younkin presented an interesting case, using a collection of bones for illustration. The subject was one that he had met in the dissecting room last winter, the case presented having many interesting features. The spinal column was curved laterally. There were fractures of the right clavicle, of the head of the right humerus, of the femur and various other portions of the bony structure. The case which furnished the bones was a man 55 years of age, and from the number of broken bones the subject must have passed through a series of bewildering accidents. Dr. Younkin's explanation was very learned and was listened to with great attention.

Dr. Ingraham, of Chicago, asked permission to introduce a interesting little apparatus. He had used seven times, and had improvised it in a case resulting out of a railroad accident. The apparatus was a gatlin for showering injured limbs, and he had found it very useful. The gutter was made so as to fill the limb, and it could be perforated on the bottom so as to allow the water used for showering to run through. If the operator desired a hose could be attached to the apparatus and in this way pus and other matter could be carried outside the room, thus avoiding all odor. In some cases Dr. Ingraham said that he used a down spout instead of the hose, which conveyed the pus, etc., into a vessel under the bed. The machine was very useful. The model which Dr. Ingraham exhibited to the Convention was examined by those present and the invention was commended by the doctors as very serviceable in surgical cases.

On motion of Mrs. Dr. A. B. Campbell of Indianapolis, Dr. R. W. Geddes' paper on the education of girls, as connected with their growth and physical condition, was made the special order for 2 p. m. The Committee on Credentials reported as new members, F. H. Fisk, Olney, Ill.; W. S. Clyde, Olney, Ills.; J. W. Stewart, New Lisbon, O. and C. Lloyd, Mass. The gentlemen were all elected members unanimously. The committee appointed to consider the application of the Georgia Eclectic Medical College and the Indiana Eclectic Medical College for admission to the association recommended that the applications be refused for the present. Dr. Borland of Georgia hoped that the report would not prevail. The Georgia College was the only Eclectic College in the South, and it was an injustice to keep it out. Dr. Fishblatt, a former member of the faculty of the college, had advertised, but this is done by the alopaths in the South quite generally. Dr. Fishblatt's name had been dropped from the faculty, however, and he was no longer connected with the institution.

Dr. Boots, of Indiana, also advocated the admission of the college from his State. He asked the association not to shut out the institution. The committee which had passed on the resolution was a prejudiced one. The speaker turned to Dr. Scudder, one of the members of the committee, and asked him if this statement was not true. Mr. Scudder said he thought there was no prejudice.

Dr. Boots repeated that the committee was prejudiced, and said he could prove it and show what some of them meant by their actions.

Dr. Gunn—I call the gentleman to order. He can't prove any prejudice.

Dr. Boots—I can prove that one of the members declared that they would give us h—l, and that they have done so. Dr. Boots was asked whether the Indiana College was recognized by the State Boards of Health. He said he did not know, but that it was recognized by the State Hospital Association. "Good God," said the speaker in conclusion, "if you keep us out, you will kill eclecticism in Indiana."

Dr. Gunn, of New York, moved that the two colleges be admitted, in the Methodist fashion, on probation for a year.

The minutes of committee were read, and among the changes it was stated that the name of Dr. Kendrick, the dean of the Indiana College, appeared on bottles of propriatory medicine labelled Sovereign Remedy for Liver Diseases. Dr. Wohlgemuth, of Illinois, thought there were too many colleges anyhow, and he challenged Dr. Boots to name the member of the Committee who had said that he would give the colleges h—l.

Dr. Boots said he would do so if requested by the President of the Association.

Dr. Gunn again called both gentlemen to order.

Dr. Younkin counselled moderation in discourse, and said that he regretted the use of personalities just exchanged. He favored Dr. Gunn's motion to see the colleges on probation.

Dr. Kendrick denied that he had any connection with patent medicines, except in one case, when he took patent cod liver oil. The oil, however, did not agree with him and he set it aside. He, however, had suffered from liver disease and had found a remedy which he put up in bottles with his name blown in the glass. It was not patented, and he was willing to give any physician the prescription or a dose of the medicine if it was wanted.

Dr. Russell, of Ohio, exhibited a bottle of Dr. Kendrick's Patent Liver Cure with the Doctor's picture on the lable, and said that this was one of the reasons why the Indiana College could not come in while Kendrick was at the head of it. Mrs. Dr. A. B. Campbell, of Indiana, mounted a box in the middle of the floor and made an eloquent appeal for the admission of the Indiana College. Dr. Duff, of Chicago, declared that it pained him to say that the Indiana College could not come in. The Association could not face the charge that would be thrown at it, viz: "You have a Dean of a College who peddles patent medicines." In regard to the Georgia College he had nothing to say.

Dr. Boots made a further appeal for the Indiana College and said that if Kendrick's liver remedy was a patent medicine, then some other members had better look out. A delay of a year would kill the college. He reiterated that the committee that passed on the application was prejudiced, and again asserted that he would name the man who declared that the college would get h—ll.

Dr. Kendrick, in order to prove that his medicine was all right, read over the formula.

Dr. J. A Reid, of Iowa, was in favor of giving the colleges a show. Iowa wanted 200 additional eclectic physicians and where were they to come from if the colleges were killed out. It was best to take both institutions in for a year.

On motion of Dr. N. G. Smith, of Indiana, discussion closed and the previous question was ordered, although at least twenty delegates were excitedly clamoring for the floor.

Dr. Gunn then read his motion to admit both institutions to the Association for one year on probation. The motion was carried by a large majority and the Georgia College and the Indiana College were declared members. Several papers were then read by title. Dr. J. A. Reids of Davenport, Ia., read a thesis on "Vaccination as a Preventative of Smallpox."

Dr. Olin, of Chicago, protested against vaccination from person to person, and said that it spread syphilitic diseases all over the land. Statistics shows, Dr. Olin said, that smallpox was just as general in its ravages now as it was before Jenner discove ed vaccination. The rule prevailing in some cities that school children should be vaccinated was barbarous.

Dr. Gunn, of New York, went farther and thought that of all the medical fallacies vaccination was the greatest. He did not believe in it in any form, Jenner's own child, the first person he vaccinated and whom he pronounced protected against small pox for life, took small pox and died of it. The virus used at the present day is the product of spontaneous cow pox, the very article that Jenner says will not protect against smallpox. In England statistics show that 90 per cent of the persons who die of smallpox have been vaccinated and revaccinated. The absurd practice spreads syphilis, tubercolosis, etc. The Convention then adjourned until 2 p. m.

WHO WILL INVESTIGATE?

A Physician Says Nothing Was Suspicious About a Case.

The energetic investigation into the horrible rumors of a wholesale slaughter of infants that reached the Coroner's office a few days ago has seemingly had a wet blanket thrown over it. The Coroner worked industriously at the case until a certificate for the burial of a child who is supposed to be one of the unfortunate innocents was issued by a physician and accepted by the Board of Health. This ended the work as far as he is concerned. The Grand Jury was expected to sift the matters, but that worthy body is now anxious to put a period to its labors, and all further work will likely be dropped. Virginia Quincey, the girl in whose care the child died at No. 717 South Main, says that she was told by Emma, whom nobody knows now, that the child had been given morphine. Dr. Fitzporter issued the certificate after he had seen the child and given it belladonna powders, and says very positively that the child had no symptoms of morphine, though he did remember that something had been said by Emma about a woman that was a morphine eater and to whose care the child was entrusted for a short time. Dr. Bradbury, to whom the child was taken about an hour before it died, said this morning the story of how Virginia Quincey came by the child left so much room for doubt that, coupled with the circumstances surrounding the matter, his suspicions were aroused and he refused to have anything to do with the case on that day. He advised the girl to go to the Board of Health, but afterwards found that a certificate had been issued. He made no thorough examination of the child, however, and cannot say positively anything of its condition. The matter will probably not drop here.

It would seem that some injustice had been done to Mrs. Sproul, the colored woman at Seventh and Market streets, who is a very decent and apparently hard working woman. She stated that the woman Emma had brought the dead child back to her, and had stated that she had left it to nurse with a woman named Carlisle who was an habitual morphine eater. It had been been sick and Dr. Fitzporter, so said Emma, had pumped the poison out, after which it died. Mrs. Sproul called upon her neighbors who all testified to her great kindness and care to to the children. Several children had been left in her charge and she had taken good care of them, as she wished to adopt them, and had only parted with the one Emma had taken through pressure of circumstances. She had no connection whatever with any midwives or women in that line, and was much mortified with the manner her name had been connected with the affair. The poor little waif lay in the room in a small white coffin, its tiny hands crossed above its snowy shroud, which was strewn with flowers. It will be interred to-day.

ADIEU, ADELE.

Engagement of Miss Adele Morrison to Mr. Albert T. Kelley.

One by one the belles of St. Louis society are preparing to leave the wilds of single blessedness. The last engagement announced is that of Mr. Albert T. Kelley to Miss Adele Morrison. The engagement was only made public last evening, and is to-day the leading topic in social circles. Miss Morrison has been the leader in the best society during the past season. She is the eldest daughter of Col. J. D. L. Morrison, and is equally remarkable for her beauty and amiability. Mr. Kelley is a New Yorker by birth and has been a resident of this city only six months. He belongs to a prominent and wealthy family in the East, his father being a well known retired banker in New York city. Mr. Kelly occupies an important position in the banking establishment of Wm. C. Little & Co., on North Third street. He is a blonde of medium height, 22 years of age and very popular.

Mrs. Morrison, accompanied by her daughters, the Misses Adele and Mamie, leave for Europe next Sunday. Mr. Kelley will accompany them East and make the tour of the Eastern watering places with them before their departure. The marriage will take place early in the spring, just after the ladies return from their trip.

ABOUT TOWN.

THE House of Delegates Committee on Claims meets this afternoon.

THE docket of the Second District Police Court was very short, only twenty cases being set down. Total amount of fines was $195.

THE Pittsburg crooks released from the Work House yesterday took two hours' time to leave town to-day. They arrived here a few months ago.

MR. J. GALLAGHER will soon erect a three-story ten-room dwelling on Delmar street, between Grand and Vandeventer avenues. The house when completed will cost about $5,000.

THE June meeting of the Missouri Historical Society (the last of the season) will take place on Thursday, 16th inst., at the School Hall, Seventh and Chestnut streets, beginning at 8 o'clock.

ONCE or twice the Assemblymen adopted a resolution asking President Flad, of the Board of Public Improvements, to give a public exhibition of his sprinkling apparatus. It is probable the request will be acceded to shortly.

THE Union M. E. Church folks have postponed their picnic from June 18 to June 22 on account of the railroad not being finished until Saturday noon. The picnic will come off next Wednesday, June 22. Trains leave Union Depot at 8 o'clock in the morning.

MR. A. P. YORE, son of Capt. P. Yore, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Miss Minnie Parina, on Monday, the 13th day of June, by the Rev. Father Burk, at the church of the Cathedral. Their many friends wish them a long life and continued happiness.

THE steamboat excursion of St. George's Church will leave the foot of Olive street Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock and return to the city at 11. We advise all who wish to spend a pleasant afternoon and evening on the river with fine music, dancing and select company, to procure tickets at once.

JULIUS ROBERTSON, the lawyer and Commissioner of Deeds for all the States, was last week reappointed by Gov. Hoyt, a Commissioner for Pennsylvania. Mr. Robertson is also about to be reappointed a Notary Public under the new law, and will no doubt largely increase his already extensive notarial business.

EDWIN BENZINGER, who stole a lot of clothing and watches last February from boarders at the Artesian House, corner of Main and Bates, was this morning arrested by Officer Goldin and a watch belonging to Matthias Bitner found upon him. He was locked up at the Third District Police station and a charge of petty larceny lodged against him.

THE following meat shop cases were disposed of in the First District Court to-day, a fine of $100 being imposed in each: Michael Duffy, by default; Daniel Fischer, Andrew Benair, William O'Connor, Pete Vose, Neuman & Constein, George Rumberg, Fred. Schneider, George P. Schafe & Co. Mr. McGinnis has a case before the Supreme Court in which the same evidence as submitted in these was elicited.

MANUAL TRAINING SCHOOL.

Closing Exercises at Washington University This Morning.

Prof. Woodward's Exhaustive and Interesting Address.

The closing exercises of the Manual Training School, corner of Washington avenue and Eighteenth street, this morning, were characteristically American. Germany may be the nation of thinkers, but America is pre-eminently the nation of doers. The exhibition of the work of the pupils for the past year was in the highest degree interesting. Nearly an hour before the time appointed for the exercises to open visitors began to gather on the third floor of the Manual Training School Building and to pass around viewing the displays. The hour for commencing having arrived, Prof. Morrison took his place at the organ and the pupils sang from the Choral, "To God on High."

On the platform in the north room, where the exercises occurred, were seated Director Woodward, Chancellor Eliot and Messrs. Edwin Harrison, chairman of the Managing Committee, Henry W. Eliot and Samuel Cupples. At the conclusion of the opening song, Director C. M. Woodward stepped forward and spoke as follows:

The first year of the Manual Training School ends to-day. This school has had many forerunners, but it differs essentially from them all. It stands quite unparalleled on American soil. It will be interesting therefore to review our year's work; to see how closely we have followed the plans laid down; and to sketch the work of these boys during their second year.

The number of students during the year has been sixty-seven. The greatest number at one time was 60, which was all that we could accomodate. The number still belonging to us is 53. The age of the pupils ranges to-day from about 15 years to 19 or 20, the average being about 17.

The school day has extended from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m., with a recess of twenty minutes. Of this time three hours per day have invariably been given to manual training, as follows: One hour to free-hand or mechanical drawing and two full hours to shop work. The rest of the time has been given to the study of Pure Mathematics, in the shape of Arithmetic and Algebra; Applied Science, in the shape of Physical Geography and Natural Philosophy; Language and Literature, in the shape of English Grammar, American History, Spelling and English Composition. Regular exercises in Penmanship should have been mentioned under the head of manual training.

In all these directions good progress has been made. These young men are, I am sure, ready to testify that, though this is known as the Manual Training School, no lack of interest is taken in both mental and moral training. Justice compels me to add that the pupils have labored at their books with unusual interest and success. The traditional drudgery has been very little felt here. How much of this may justly be claimed as the result of the great variety on the daily programme is somewhat uncertain, but I am sure that the effect has been very wholesome to both the mind and the body.

Special interest naturally centers in the features peculiar to this school, namely, the exercises in drawing and shop work. Hence we think it best to dispense with the ordinary recitations and show you what the school has done and how it was done in these new directions.

The drawing and shop work must speak for themselves. As I have said, every boy has spent one hour a day in drawing; or, during the year, eighty hours at free-hand drawing and 120 hours at mechanical drawing. Only a small part of the earlier exercises have been preserved. Like all first attempts they were of course crude and unattractive. The later productions are before you; they are the result of one year's work engrafted upon such training as boys have coming from schools, public and private, in and out of St. Louis.

Not a single drawing has been copied from another drawing. I do not say this to condemn copying, for copying may be done to great advantage, but because the fact is as I have stated it.

There the drawings had been arranged around the walls from right to left according to grade and were referred to as Mr. Woodward proceeded—pencil drawings illustrate the use of instruments, and how measurements are made and used. All are drawn from actual objects and are full size. The general use of scales will come next year.

Unconsciously the pupils have here learned orthographic projection, and how to make and read working drawings. The study of working drawings has been closely accompanied by the use of drawings in the shop below.

After pencil work from measurements came exercises with pen and India ink upon stretched drawing paper. These exercises are considerably varied, as the specimens show and present the best for machine drawing and lettering. Nearly every pupil has finished one or more machine drawing, and I believe all are shown, good, bad and indifferent. All are drawn from our own tools and are very creditable. Next year these pupils will apply line shading to machine work; take up brush tinting and shading and apply them to more machine and architectural drawings.

The free-hand work began with outlines from groups of geometrical figures. Shading followed, at first with charcoal and then with crayon, as seen in the adjoining room. All these drawings were displayed in the west recitation room. The earlier drawings were made in this room. It will be seen that each desk is provided with an adjustable top for the purpose of bringing the face of the drawing-board squarely beneath or in front of the eye. Next year free-hand work will be extended to less simple or conventional forms. Models from vegetable and animal forms will be gradually introduced. Special exercises will be given in free-hand projection drawing, based on mechanical drawing. This will give facility in sketching frames, machines, etc., which is very desirable.

I ought to say just here that all the drawing boards, stands, easels, models and bureaus have been made in the school by the pupils.

All the instruction in drawing has been given by Mr. Charles Holloway and a few pupils who cannot work below, etc.

The shop work began with carpentry and continued at that branch for about thirty-three weeks, making 330 hours. The exercises have been numerous and logically arranged—the principal ones are shown in order in the east recitation room. Along the blackboard, beginning at the farther end of the room, the typical exercises are shown. Large quantities of similar exercises are shown in boxes which can be handled and carried away if desired; those within the guard line are not to be disarranged.

I warn you not to expect from these boys, many of whom never handled tools before, any fine workmanship. Three hundred and thirty hours make what a carpenter would call thirty-three days, and besides each boy had to be taught the theory of his tools and how to grind and keep them in order. Aside from apparatus made for the school, many of the exercises cannot be repeated. We have really kept only a few. You can readily picture many of the things taught. Imagine an exercise in saw-filing by twenty boys.

Progress in execution has not been as rapid as in appreciation of good work. Give these boys time and they will now become good joiners without much instruction. At various times throughout their course they will have occasion to use the skill already acquired with the woodworking tools.

In a few minutes I shall send one division of the school to the carpenter shop, and Mr. Barrett will give them a lesson in carpentry. The exercise will be a very simple one, but one which so far as Mr. Barrett knows the class has not had. He will give and fully illustrate the lesson, that you may see just how this instruction is given to classes. You will notice that each boy has a drawer of tools in his charge and that the "A" division will execute the lesson with tools of their own sharpening. You will note the standard of excellence set by the teacher. In the supervision which the instructor exercises while the boys are at work you will see how perfectly impossible it is for a boy to acquire any very clumsy or vicious habits of work.

For five or six weeks all divisions have been engaged in the second shop in wood turning. They have used but two tools as yet—the guage and the turning chisel. Some of the exercises are shown in the west recitation room. About half of the tools were finished with the gouge alone. As yet they have learned nothing of the mysteries of chucks, inside turnings and fittings. As soon as the boys in the carpenter shop are well at work at their benches I shall call you all into the wood turning room where Mr. White will give a lesson. The exercise he will choose will probably bring into play both the gouge and the chisel. The exercise will be short, and a second one may be given, after which you can return to the carpenter shop.

The wood turning will continue next year and develop more fully into the nicest of all wood-work, "pattern-making." The use of simple patterns in moulding has already been illustrated by Mr. White. Perhaps next year our facilities for moulding will be greatly increased. A word to the wise, etc.

After pattern-making and before next Christmas the boys will be promoted to the blacksmith shop. A number of new forges and tools will be added to the present outfit, and as in the former shops twenty boys will be taught at once. The sort of work they will do is fairly shown by certain exercises executed by the students from the undergraduate department during the past year now on exhibition in the blacksmith shop. Our display there next year will however be much larger and more varied.

Lastly will come the machine shop, which I will only mention by name.

Side by side with the culture of the eye and hand comes that of the mind and heart. We would have our students skillful, thoughtful and gentle.

In closing this hasty and imperfect statement of our work, I may be permitted to say that the year has confirmed my faith in both the value and demand for schools like this. The founders and supporters of this school will not soon be forgotten. Many thanks are due to my efficient corps of assistants and we all thank our Board of Managers.

At the conclusion of Mr. Woodward's address Chancellor Eliot, on behalf of the Managing Committee, spoke briefly, after which the boys sang in good style "Village Bells."

The formal part of the exercises closed here, and visitors were invited to the carpenter shop below, where Mr. Norman C. Bassett gave a fifteen minute lesson. Then the people passed across the hall to the turning shop, where Mr. Chas. T. White was working with his pupils. Following this was a display of drill work in free hand drawing conducted by Mr. Chas. Holloway in the main room. That the closing exercises of the Manual Training School was a novel and intensely interesting occasion is the universal verdict of those who witnessed them.

THE COMMENCEMENT TO-NIGHT.

The event of the week to which educational people of St. Louis have looked forward with an unusual degree of interest is the commencement exercises of the College and Polytechnic School of Washington University, at Memorial Hall this evening. The exercises will open at 8 o'clock with prayer, after which University Glee Club will sing "The Ocean," by Schuman. Alfred Greve and Edward F. Jackson will deliver orations, the former taking for his theme "Path Breaking," and the latter "Nihilism." A commemoration ode, written by William V. Jaynes, will then be read by Edward Flad. Music by the University Glee Club will follow. The theses written by candidates for various degrees will not be read. Those who have written theses and their degrees are as follows: Edmund Hall, for the degree of Bachelor of Philosophy; Alexander E. Abend, Edward Flad and Julius Wm. Staub, for the degree of Civil Engineer; Wm. H. Bryan and Nathan W. Perkins, Jr., for the degree of Mechanical Engineer; Samuel T. Burnet, Joseph T. Morrell, Louis H. Ritterskamp and Silas B. Russell, for the degree of Engineer of Mines; Harry M. Newington, for the degree of Architect, and Christopher R. Eliot, Ada C. Fisher, and Edward C. Eliot for the degree of Master of Arts. C. R. Eliot and Ada C. Fisher took their first degree in 1876, and E. C. Eliot in 1878. The presentation of medals awarded to students of St. Louis School of Fine Arts will be followed by announcement of prizes for the best essay on subjects connected with American History. A song by the University Glee Club will conclude the exercises.

THE PAUPER PRACTICE.

A Delegation of Doctors Closeted With the Mayor.

Drs. Prewitt, Kingsley, Robinson and Lankford called on the Mayor to-day and had a lengthy consultation. They are connected with the Missouri Medical College, and having heard that the condition of the city's finances was likely to necessitate retrenchment in the dispensary and hospital departments they had a proposition to make. The details are left to be arranged if the Mayor thinks favorably of the plan. The idea is for the faculty to furnish medical service much cheaper than the city now gets it. The professors also think there can be a great saving effected in the drug bills. A branch dispensary at the college is contemplated. The advantage to the doctors comes in the way of increased clinics. In short they propose to relieve the city of a portion of the burden now borne and, the treatment of the pauper sick is to be made contributory to the cause of science.

Comptroller Adreon's Alleged Under-Estimate.

Whenever anybody goes to fooling with Comptroller Adreon's estimates and thinks he has discovered a blunder he usually gets the worst of it. This morning the Globe-Democrat calls attention to what it claims was an under-estimate by the Comptroller of the revenue for the current year. The writer got hold of the Comptroller's estimate of revenue on the assessed value of property in the old city limits, and thought the figures were those of the whole city. Instead of being a quarter of a million out of the way on the estimated revenue, Mr. Adreon has hit the figures very closely. The blunder is on the newspaper man.

The St. Louis and San Francisco Right of Way.

The indications are that the bill providing for the passage of the St. Louis and San Francisco Railway from the city limits to the Union Depot will go through the House of Delegates Friday night "a whooping." Assemblymen say the prospects of the measure are greatly improved by the impression which has gotten out that the Missouri Pacific is fighting the admission of the road, as that company now gets the benefit of the St. Louis and San Francisco rental of tracks from Pacific to St. Louis. Since the recent troubles over the Carondelet track laying and the Jefferson Avenue bridge, the Missouri Pacific is looked upon as an enemy at the City Hall.

EAST ST. LOUIS.

Michael Welsh returned home this morning after a month's sojourn at Lake Minnetonka.

Patrick Devine was arrested last night for being drunk on the streets. He was released this morning for want of prosecution.

John Barry was arraigned before Squire Graney this morning for assault and battery and disturbing the peace. Barry was fined $5 and costs.

The great attraction in East St. Louis tomorrow will be a colored picnic which is to take place in Brooklyn. The majority of the justices and constables will attend in a body.

The Coroner's inquest over the body of Joseph Bucher, who was killed by a fall from one of the elevated sidewalks, was concluded this morning. Weisenburger, the man who is accused of throwing Bucher off the sidewalk, was sent to Belleville to await the action of the Grand Jury.

The disagreement about the city cases is about at an end. The back-bone of the justices' combination was broken and the Mayor and City Attorney are victorious. When the proposition to try the cases for nothing was drawn up the City Attorney was appointed as a committee of one to wait upon the justices and demand their signatures. The justices were to hold a meeting to consider the proposition, and resist in a body. The meeting fell through, and the next day the proposition was presented to Squire Graney for signature. He refused to sign it on the grounds that as he had been doing all the city work heretofore, it would be an injustice to the other Squires to sign it without consulting them. When the proposition was submitted to Squire Eckman he signed it without hesitation. Squires Noton and Bunyan followed his example and the result was Squire Graney was the only opposer to the scheme. The proposition is to be presented to him again and the probabilities are he will sign it. The justices will then each have a week at the city work.

Indications.

WASAINGTON, June 16.—For Tennessee and Ohio Valley, warmer and partly cloudy weather, occasional rain, variable winds, mostly southerly; stationary or lower barometer. Ohio Medicos.

COLUMBUS, O., June 16.—The State Medical Association spent the morning in listening to papers on subjects only interesting to the profession. A resolution was unanimously adopted indorsing Superintendent Doreus' efficient management of the Asylum for the Feeble-Minded Youth, manifest in all the details of his duty, and commends the support he receives from the trustees and Legislature. The society will hold its next meeting in this city the second Tesday of next June.

Attempted Arson.

A colored woman named Ellen Hubbard was arrested to-day for an attempted arson upon the house of Mr. D. H. Hays, the Chief Clerk in the Post-office Department. She had committed a robbery of about $200 worth of property and set the premises on fire, apparently to conceal the theft.

The Markets.

FORENOON SESSION.

Flour was steady but quiet; latter due more to a light supply than anything else. We quote: Fancy $4 70@6 10; choice $5 30@5 40; family $4 60@4 75; XXX $4 45@4 70; XX $3 85@4 00; X $3 45@3 65; superfine $3 20@3 40; fine $2 85@3 00; extra fancy and patents held higher.

Wheat lost again in price, but the feeling was very much unsettled and the decline was not great, while operators were slow to sell at the lower rates, and later futures stiffened above yesterday's close. The demand was much better for No. 2 red, which was taken by shorts and exporters at $1 13¼; No. 3 red opened ¼ off at $1 08, but went up to $1 08¼ under a milling, shipping and order demand; for No. 4 there was an indifferent bid of $1 01 and for No. 2 Mediterranean $1 01½; No. 3 do brought $1 07 this side; $1 bid for No. 2 spring and 98 asked for No. 3 do. No. 2 red sold for June at $1 13¼; July at $1 13@1 13⅞; August at $1 12⅝@1 13⅛; September at $1 13⅞@1 14⅜; year at $1 11⅞@1 12⅝.

Corn—The strength that has marked this market had about disappeared to-day, except in the case of a few grades—white mixed and no grade, which were sharply sought for; but No. 2 mixed and rejected declined, firmer for both cash and future. No. 2 white mixed was firm at 48⅜@48⅝, selling to speculators, and a miller paid 48⅜ for St. L.; competition between order and milling buyers run rejected do at St. L. from 45⅞ to 46, it selling in C and E at 45 and in V at 45@⅛, but A. offered at 44. No. 2 mixed was in export demand at 46⅜, a little selling earlier to a short at 46⅞; rejected sold for shipment at 34⅞@⅜ this and 35¼ E side. No grade in E sold at 28 and 27¼ bid regular. No. 2 mixed sold at 46⅜ June; 45⅞ July; 46¼@46⅞ August, late 46 asked; 46⅞@46⅜ September, late 46¼ asked; year at 41⅛ to 41¼, closing at 41¼; No. 2 white-mixed at 48⅜@48⅝ June; 49 July.

Oats—Declined and were weak, with free sellers. Grade No. 2 sold fairly at 35⅞ E. side and 35⅜ for fresh regular; No. 2 white salable at 37 and rejected sold at 34½; No. 2 sold for July at 34½, August at 28, but later offered 27⅝, bid 27⅛, and year at 27⅛@27, closing at 27⅛.

Rye—Sample lots moved pretty freely, but only at lower rates, prime to choice selling at 80@85c. Grade No. 2 offered at 93c, with 88 bid; rejected neglected.

Millfeed—Bran in demand and strong at an advance, sacked selling at 57½ f. o. b. E. track and 55 at mill; for bulk E track 49@50 bid.

Hay—Offerings small on this side, but a large amount held in warehouse E. side. Demand light and entirely on local account. Prime to choice timothy E. track sold at $10@12; this side prime to fancy at $13 50@16 50.

Provisions—stronger and tending upward, with bacon showing greatest strength, as the demand was particularly urgent therefor. Standard mess pork sold f. o. b. at $16 70 and saleable for July at $16 75. Considerable prime steam lard changed hands, but terms kept private; worth about 10 80. Loose summer make dry salt quotable at 5⅝c for shoulders, 8.40 for long clear, 8½ clear ribs, 8⅝ short clear, and several large lots sold, but all particulars withheld. Packed bacon shoulders sold at 6⅜, long clear and clear ribs at 9⅛, short clear at 9⅝, and later for August at 9.85. Hams 10⅞@11⅜ for s. c. canvased; small size fancy 12@13c. Tallow 5⅞@6⅜ according to quality. Breakfast bacon 11½@12⅜c. Grease 4@4⅜ for brown, 5@5⅜c for yellow, 6@7c for white, 8@9c for manufacturing lard. Beef—Extra mess $12 per bbl.; prime mess $9 50 per bbl.; family $7 per half-bbl.; dried 14@15c per pound. Fresh smoked tongues $4 50@5 per doz. Salt nominal.

Highwines—Steady. Sales 184 brls at $1 06; Cincinnati, $1 06; Chicago, $1 08; Peoria, $1 07.

Lead—Soft Missouri held firmly at $1 37½, and selling quietly at that.

CATTLE—The market was only moderately active and altogether in fair to good native steers. Total supply large, about 125 car loads, the bulk of which consisted of native steers from common to good. Grass Texans in moderate supply and good steers steady and unchanged, but common were slow of disposal at mean prices. Eastern and interior shippers and exporters were on hand and commenced the inspection of cattle early, but did not apper so urgent to take hold as the past two days. However, tidy, well matured steers will sell at quotations and no doubt by 1 p. m. the pens will be pretty well cleared. Common to fair mixed butcher stuff dull and 5@10c per 100 lbs lower. Ruling quotations weak.

Rupture Cured!
OVER 600 CASES
Since the establishment of the Vienna Institute in this city over 600 ruptured persons have applied to us for relief. This included every variety of rupture, from the small incomplete to the large and double rupture of 30 to 42 years standing, measuring in some cases 20 to 21 inches in circumference, as in the case of Messrs Geo. Loehr, 1516 North Market street; Frank Schmidt, 1312 N. Eleventh street, and others. Many of these persons when they applied to us were utterly unable to perform manual labor on account of the frightful proportions of their ruptures and constant danger of strangulation. They are now completely restored to health. We have abundant testimony from physicians who have examined our patients, and the patients themselves will substantiate the above.
The Vienna Institute, for the cure of hernia, is permanently established at 1113 Washington avenue, this city.
Our method is not a surgical operation, is applicable to both sexes, does not interfere with one's occupation and is not painful.

TRUSTEE'S SALE.—Whereas, William Hueston, by his certain deed of trust, dated May 25, 1877, and recorded in book 569, page 395, of St. Louis City Records, conveyed to Joseph T. Donovan, trustee, the following described real estate lying and being in the City of St. Louis and State of Missouri, to-wit: The east half of lot number ten (10) and all of lot nine (9) in block five hundred and forty-eight (548) of said city, said lots have together a front of fifty (50) feet on the west line of Fourteenth street; said lot ten has a depth of seventy-two feet and ten inches more or less to the west line of lot conveyed by Hannah E. Cubberly to said Wm. Hueston, and said lot No. nine (9) having a depth of one-hundred and forty-five (145) feet more or less to an alley. Bounded north by Hannah E. Cubberly et al., east by Fourteenth street, south by lot No. eight (8), and west by said Cubberly and said alley; and whereas default has been made in the payment of the notes described in said deed, now therefore at the request of the legal holder and owner of said notes and in pursuance of the terms of said deed, I will offer said property for sale at public vendue to the highest bidder, for cash, at the east front door of the Court House in the city of St. Louis, Mo., between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of
for the purposes of said trust.

Trustees' Sales.

SHERIFF'S SALE.—By virtue and authority of a special execution issued from the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court at the city of St. Louis, returnable to the June term, 1881, of said court, and to me directed, wherein the State of Missouri, at the relation and to the use of Myer A. Rosenblatt, Collector of the City of St. Louis, in the State of Missouri, is plaintiff, and Susan H. Floyd, William F. Floyd, Mary Lutz, Elizabeth Haab, Louis Haab and unknown heirs of Sabina Haab are defendants,

I have levied upon and seized the following described real estate, situated in the city of St. Louis and State of Missouri, and charged with the lien of tax bill on which this action is founded, and described in said execution as follows, to-wit:

1. A part of lot No. 2 of Haab's addition to the city of St. Louis, and city block No. 1149 of the city of St. Louis; said lot fronting 13 6-12 feet on Bellefontaine road by a depth of 28 6-12 feet, and bounded on the north by land of Floyd, on east by Bellefontaine road, on the south to a point and on the west by Branch street.

2. COMMISSIONER'S SALE

OF VALUABLE

REAL ESTATE IN PARTITION.

In pursuance of an order of the Circuit Court, City of St. Louis, made and entered of record on the 2d day of June, 1881, in a certain cause pending in said court, wherein Elise Guye is plaintiff and Elise J. Guye, Anna E. Guye, Adele Guye, Alice L. A. Guye and Paul Guye are defendants, being cause No. 54,212 of said court, whereby the undersigned was appointed special commissioner in said case, and whereby the undersigned was directed to sell the above real estate hereinafter described, the undersigned, special commissioner in said cause, under the authority so vested in him by said order of court and by virtue thereof, will, on between the hours of ten o'clock in the forenoon and five o'clock in the afternoon of said day, at the eastern front door of the Court House, in the city of St. Louis, and during term time of said Circuit Court, offer for sale at public auction, to the highest bidder, upon the terms below mentioned, the following described real estate, situated in the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, viz.:

First. A certain lot of ground, with the buildings and improvements thereon, situate in block number seven (7) in the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, designated on the plat of the subdivision of said block as lot number fifteen (15), containing twenty-five feet front on Main street by ninety feet four inches in depth and bounded on the north by lot number sixteen, on the east by an alley, on the south by lot number fourteen and on the west by Main street.

Second. Two certain lots or pieces of land lying and being in the city of St. Louis and described as follows: Being lots number thirty-five and thirty-six in block number seventy-six of survey No. three of Kreutzbauer's subdivision in the late city of Carondelet (now St. Louis), each lot having a front of about twenty-five feet, said lots being bounded north by the property of Siekendick, east by Benton street, south by Espenschied street and west by an alley.

The terms of said sale as fixed by said order of court are as follows: One-third of the purchase price to be paid in cash and the balance in equal installments, payable respectively in one and two years from day of sale, with six per cent interest per annum upon the deferred payments, with purchaser's option to pay the whole in cash; deferred payments, if any, to be evidenced by promissory notes secured by deed of trust upon the property sold.

JNO. J. MAUNTEL,
Special Commissioner.

TRUSTEE'S SALE.—Whereas Thomas Kidney and Anna Kidney, his wife, by their deed of trust dated May 23, 1878, and recorded in book 593, on page 128, in the Recorder's office at St. Louis, Missouri, did convey to the undersigned, as trustee, lots numbered seventy-nine (79) and eighty (80) in block one (1) of South Stoddard Addition of the City of St. Louis, Missouri, according to the amended plat of said addition, which is duly recorded in the Recorder's office aforesaid; said lots having an aggregate front on the west line of Argyle avenue of fifty (50) feet by a depth of one hundred and twenty-eight (128) feet to an alley twenty feet wide; which conveyance was in trust to secure the payment of certain promissory notes in said deed of trust described; and, whereas, the principal note of $1,200 and last interest note being for $48, secured by said deed, have become due and default has been made in the payment thereof; now, therefore at the request of the legal holder of said notes and pursuant to the authority given me by said deed of trust, I will on between 10 o'clock a. m. and 5 o'clock p. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder, for cash, at the east front door of the Court House, in said City of St. Louis, sell said real estate to satisfy said notes and trust.

GEO. W. LUBKE,

Sheriff's Sales.

SHERIFF'S SALE UNDER DEED OF TRUST.—Whereas, Henry Droste and Elisa Droste, his wife, by their deed dated the 27th of October, A. D. 1875, and recorded in the Recorder's office of St. Louis City, in book 536, page 61, conveyed to Frederick Erhart in trust the following described real estate situated in the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, to-wit:

Lots numbered thirty-eight (38) and the eastern half of lot thirty-nine (39) of North Cote Brilliante subdivision of the property of Archibald R. Tayler, a plat of which said subdivision is on file in the office of the Recorder of St. Louis county, now city, plat book number six (6), page (38), said lot numbered thirty-eight (38) and part of lot numbered thirty-nine (39) having an aggregate front of seventy-five (75) feet on the south line of the Natural Bridge Plank Road and with that width running southwardly one hundred and fifty (150) feet.

Also lots numbered fifty-seven (57) and the eastern half of lot fifty-six (56) of said subdivision, having an aggregate front of seventy-five (75) feet on the north line of First avenue, and with that width running northwardly one hundred and fifty (150) feet; reference is here made to said plat of record for a more full and accurate description of said lots hereby conveyed, with all the improvements erected thereon; it being part of the same property acquired by said Henry Droste of Charles Sundermann and Dorothea, his wife, by deed dated April 28, 1871, and duly recorded in the Recorder's office in St. Louis county, now city, in the State of Missouri, in book 426, page 161.

Which said conveyance was made in trust to secure the payment of four certain promissory notes in said deed described. And whereas one of the said notes remain due and unpaid, and the said Frederick Erhart, said trustee, has departed this life without having completed the performance of the duties imposed on him by said deed of trust, and the Circuit Court of St. Louis City having made an order on the 10th day of May, 1881, appointing the Sheriff of the City of St. Louis, trustee, to execute said deed of trust in lieu and place of the original trustee. Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that, at the request of the legal holder of said notes, and by virtue of the said order of Court, and in pursuance of the provisions of said deed of trust, the undersigned will on between the hours of 9 o'clock in the forenoon and 5 o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at the east front door of the Court House in the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, proceed to sell at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash, the above described real estate to satisfy said notes and the costs of executing said trust.

A CINCINNATI DETECTIVE.
How He Was Paid for His Services in the Martin Bigamy Case.
Detective J. C. Grannon, of Cincinnati, arrived in the city to-day with a requisition for Fred. Beck, who is wanted on a charge of horse-stealing in Ohio. Beck was arrested a few days ago by Detective O'Neil. It will be remembered that shortly after the arrest of George W. Martin, who has been indicted by the Grand Jury for bigamy, Grannon, who figured prominently in the arrest, was himself arrested at the instance of wife No. 3, and charged with the theft of a diamond ring valued at $75. It is also said that he had received $200 to allow Martin to go free. A few days ago Detective Grannon had an examination at which he was honorably acquitted. In this case which has filled whole columns of the newspapers about the country three boxes claimed by Mrs. Martin No. 2 and also by Martin himself were spoken of prominently. Detectives Grannon and Cushman, who failed to received a $200 reward which they were told awaited them on the surrender of Martin at St. Louis, last Monday got judgment against Mrs. Martin for the reward and expenses. The mysterious boxes were levied on, but were no sooner in the hands of the constable than they were replevied in great haste.

The Crystal Plate Glass Company.
The telegrams from Des Moines state that the contract for the glass in the new Iowa State House was let yesterday to the Crystal Plate Glass Company of St. Louis. The building will require 17,000 square feet of polished plate glass. There were seven or eight bids, all accompanied by samples, some of them representing English, French and Belgian manufactories. This is quite a victory for the home company, but is really only one of a series wherein the Crystal Plate Glass Company has proved itself more than equal either to home or foreign competition. The company, under Mr. Hitchcock's energetic management, has pushed its way into every market on this continent. It furnished the glass for the Metropolitan Museum of Fine Arts in New York, for the State House at Albany, for the United States Custom Houses at Chicago and Little Rock, for the Shillito Building in Cincinnati, for all the large edifices in St. Louis, and for numerous buildings all through the country. In fact wherever a really fine article of plate glass has been wanted the Crystal Company have only to come upon the field to distance competition.

Mr. Jeremiah Miller, foreman of this vast enterprise, writes as follows: I suffered for a long time with severe pains in the knee, at times being scarcely able to move. I tried medicines of all kinds, but nothing would benefit me. Happening to think of St. Jacobs Oil I used it with faint hope, however, that it would benefit me. What was my surprise to find after a few applications that the pain had ceased, and in a few days I was entirely cured.

The History of a Widow-Maniac and His Victims.

The developments growing out of the furniture-contract suit of Mrs. Drake against James E. Hall, the Washington avenue granite merchant, ex-Congregational Minister, are of a character that would furnish interesting material for a novel of the Zola life-picture order. Testimony as to the character and credibility of the ex-Minister is being gathered in the course of depositions for the plaintiff, and some of the most prominent men in the community, clergy, bar and commerce, will contribute a page to the history of the marble merchant. Mr. Hall first honored this city with his presence during the early construction of the Custom House, being sent out here as the agent of Gen. Davis Tilson, of Rockland, Me., who was interested with the Hurricane Granite Company in furnishing the supply of granite for the new structure. He brought letters from Congregationalists in the East and at once identified himself with the West End church element. At Roxbury, Mass., he left a wife and child, but this fact was unknown to his new friends and acquaintances in St. Louis. About 40 years of age, of medium height, black hair, dark grey eyes, black well trimmed mustache and whiskers, a benign expression and agreeable presence, with a voice of impressive tenderness, James Hall presented a pleasing exterior which won him friends and admirers in the West End congregations, and he was introduced from one circle to another until his popularity for social qualities was thoroughly well established.

THE LADIES

spoke of Mr. Hall as such a thoroughly gallant gentleman, always obliging and agreeable. His buggy was at their disposal at all times, and he frequently furnished the company himself. He was foremost in every church movement and enterprise of charity; he was regularly on hand with flowers and all the delicate attentions of a fascinating young man wherever the occasion offered. He first located himself with the Colcord family at their residence on Twenty-eighth and Morgan streets, and paid particular attention to the young lady of the family. After the granite contract at the Custom House was completed Mr. Hall made up his mind that St. Louis was a most agreeable place, and he determined to locate here permanently, establishing himself in the marble monument business. He took steps after getting here to rid himself of the concealed incumbrance in the shape of a wife and family at Roxbury, Mass., and a Chicago lawyer was employed to get a divorce in the Salt Lake City courts. The Utah job was easily put through, Mr. Hall making affidavit of his intention to come out and settle at Salt Lake and him with a letter of congratulation upon his intended course. Armed with this authority, however, Hall telegraphed to a Miss Hardwicke, the daughter of a prominent Massachusetts granite dealer who had previously boarded in his family, telling her that no obstacle was now in the way; he was a free man and he could marry her right away. The young lady had encouraged an honest affection for him while under his Eastern roof, and, believing the divorce to be valid, she packed her property together, including $12,000 in U. S. bonds, and started for the West, meeting Hall at Toledo. They were married the following day at Detroit by the Rev. Mr. Williamson, a Presbyterian divine. Miss Hardwicke's money was invested by Hall in some lots on Grand avenue and the vicinity after they arrived here, and the Colcord house was selected as their abode for a time. Subsequently Mr. Hall rented No. 2704 Lucas avenue and went into housekeeping. After the birth of a child Mrs. Hall—or more correctly speaking, Miss Hardwicke—became troubled in mind respecting her position, and as a member of Doctor Ganse's congregation she consulted several friends among the clergy, relating the facts concerning Hall's Utah divorce, etc. About that time the Congregational Council was in session here, and Miss Hardwicke's brother came on from Massachusetts as a delegate. He felt deeply concerned for his sister and he sought the advice of the clergy here.

Simultaneously a letter written by Hall to Mrs. Burge, a young widow-lady, couched in most affectionate terms, came to light and that lady having her suspicions aroused made it convenient to call one day at the Lucas avenue residence. The bell was answered by a young girl holding a baby in her arms. Mrs. Burge inquired for Mr. Hall, and was told that he was out, but "Mrs. Hall" was at home. Her worst suspicions were confirmed and intensified when the girl answering another query said that the child was Mr. Hall's. The widow confronted Hall with her experience and he indignantly denied that he was married, at the same time producing the Utah decree from his pocket. This led to an investigation carried on quietly among church friends and the result can better be given in the words of the who was asked this morning by a P.-D. reporter what he knew concerning Hall and his actions as a resident of St. Louis?

"My attention," said Doctor Brookes, "was first called to this man during the Congregational session here last year, when Mr. Hardwicke, a prominent delegate from Massachusetts, called upon me for advice in a delicate matter. He said in substance that his sister, who had boarded East in the family of Mr. Hall, now a resident of St. Louis, had been induced to follow him and get married to him at Detroit under the impression that he had effected a legal divorce from his wife at Roxbury There were facts and circumstances, however, which caused a suspicion as to the validity of the decree which Hall had exhibited, and the brother wanted to be satisfied before he left for home. If his sister's position as Hall's wife could not be established beyond a doubt he proposed to take her back to Massachusetts and save the credit of the family. I went into the matter to give my opinion

FROM A BIBLICAL STANDPOINT.

I was told that lawyers had pronounced the Utah decree void, but I simply took the religious ground, and after investigation I was convinced that Mr. Hardwicke's sister could not longer remain with Mr. Hall. She was not his wife, and until she was I sould not counsel her remaining under his roof. We all met together and talked the matter over. Hall affected much contrition and said he wanted to place Miss Hardwicke in a proper position. I did not place much confidence in Hall, especially when it became known to me that he had written a letter of affection to an estimable young widow lady here, Mrs. Burge. I spoke very plainly to Hall about this and told him there could be no doubt of his designs upon that lady. I told Miss Hardwicke from a Biblical standpoint what I considered her position was, and what she ought to do as a Christion woman for she was a member of the First Presbyterian Church, having attached herself there when she first came on. I advised her to return with her brother to Massachusetts until Mr. Hall had established his divorce from his wife beyond the shadow of a doubt. If after that she entertained full affection for him it would be proper to reunite by form of marriage. I have heard a great deal concerning Hall's actions, but that was the full extent of my personal knowledge touching Miss Hardwicke and her connection with Hall. The lady did ultimately go back to Massachusetts. Hall had a pew at Dr. Ganse's church, but he previously attended services at Dr. Goodell's church.

The flowers of Mr. Hall's victims in church circles seem to have been selected from Pilgrim Congregational Church, no less than four widows of that congregation having had cause to regret ever meeting him. He presented two fronts of a remarkable character. To unsuspecting females he appeared as a good, pious Christian, and used religion as a cloak for ingratiating himself into their good graces; to women of the world he affected no disguise but carried on his intrigues with unblushing effrontery. At Dr. Ganse's church he was considered by some of the members a very estimable pillar, and when a difference arose in that congregation, some feeling disposed to part with Doctor Ganse in order to secure a man of greater force, Hall sided with the Ganse element and offered to give a lot in the West End for the erection of a new church for Dr. Ganse's supporters, providing that he (Hall) furnished the granite.

The conference to decide Miss Hardwicke's status was held at Hall's house on Lucas avenue. The Rev. Dr. Ganse and Brookes were present and each offered up a prayer for Hall, who knelt before them as a penitent. When Dr. Ganse got through with an eloquent invocation the conference took seats to observe the effect upon Hall, and Dr. Ganse, looking over his spectacles at Hall, remarked with a smile that he really believed he could discern a ray of hope for Hall. Dr. Brookes did not observe it, but went on to give his opinion of the man and his actions. Two young girls were introduced to the Christian Home by Hall and his co-laborer in the vineyard, Bedient, who went together at intervals to give Biblical instruction to the girls. The matron, however, soon discovered that the instruction was not strictly biblical, and the girls were requested to leave.

The neighbors on Lucas avenue express virtuous indignation at the scenes enacted within the Hall mansion after Miss Hardwicke's departure with her child for her old home. Respectable families were scandalized by matters that cold not escape their notice. At Hall's office on Washington avenue it was customary for ladies to call at all hours of the day in quest of the lively marble merchant, some with applications for money and others with notes and flowers. A mysterious lady in black was a frequent visitor and a lady from Webster Groves dropped in at intervals. The list of Hall's acquaintances inside and outside of church circles would fill a volume. Mrs. Sayers, Mrs. Stone, Mrs. Adams and a Mrs. Wallace were peculiarly favored with his delicate attentions.

DR. GOODELL.

It was of course important to know just what Dr. Goodell would say about Mr. Hall, as it was in his sheeptold that the gentleman has committed the greatest havoc, and a call was made for that purpose at the well known Congregational pastor's residence, 3006 Pine street. The Doctor promptly came down to the parlor, and, asking his two visitors to be seated, for the following is a sort of binocular interview, the POST-DISPATCH representative began: "Doctor, we have called on you not so much for information as for confirmation. We would like to hear from your own lips the story of Mr. James E. Hall's exploits in your parish."

The Doctor compressed his remarkable eyes until they assumed a peculiarly shrewd expression. He waited for a moment, evidently framing his answer with some care, and then replied: "You must excuse me from answering that question."

"You understand, Doctor, that we are not asking from you the original story; that is known—all that we want are the details."

"I understand, but you must pardon me—I will say nothing about Mr. Hall.

"Was he not a member of your Church?"

"No, sir."

"At least he had a sitting there and he came to this city first as a Congregational minister?"

"You are wrong again; he did not come to this city as a minister; he ceased being a minister at home in Massachusetts. It is true he had a sitting in my Church but he has not had it now for some time."

"Do you not believe, Doctor, that it is your duty to expose a man who is doing as Hall is alleged to be doing?"

"No, sir—I am looking at this thing from my standpoint. You want a sensational article which will startle that town. Go ahead and get it if you can—you can't get it from me. I know that this man can do no more harm in my church, and thereby responsibility ends."

"But he is said to be still at his work of deceiving innocent women in this city. Is not the whole world your parish? Is it not your duty to assist the press in exposing a man of his character, so that no other ladies will get into trouble through him?"

"No, sir; the world is your parish—the parish of the press. I think that his power for evil has been very much circumscribed. It is a matter between you and your conscience what you do to expose him."

"You knew Miss Hardwick, the lady he brought here from Roxbury, Mass., and induced to believe that she was his wife?"

"Oh, yes, I knew her."

"Her brother is a prominent minister in your Church?"

"Oh, yes."

"Will you say anything about the reason why Mr. Hardwick took his sister away from Mr. Hall and brought her home?"

"No, sir."

"Will you tell me this, Doctor? Did not Mr. Hall attempt to engage Mrs. Sayers, Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Wallace, Miss Minnie Colcord and Mrs. Burge to marry him, most of whom are members of your church?"

"Will you promise not to use my name if I answer that question?"

A heavy silence here fell upon the trio, which Dr. Goodell broke by saying "Not one of the ladies you name is engaged to be married to him."

"That was not exactly the question, Doctor. Do you know of his attempting to become engaged to these ladies?"

Here followed another silence, which the reporter ended by asking: "Do you know anything about an adventure which Mr. Hall and the Rev. John C. Bedient had with a couple of young ladies at the Woman's Christian Home which ended in the young ladies being expelled from the institution?"

"I never heard of any. I would like to say that Mr. Bedient can not be described as reverend. He was degraded from the ministry some time since at Kansas City. You know whenever we find a black sheep we turn him out. Bedient was a queer fellow. I always thought him a sort of monomaniac."

"Mr. Hall is a maniac, too, in a certain direction?"

The Doctor smiled, but said nothing, and the smile rippled into a laugh as he remarked: "This ought to make a fine article for you, gentlemen. I see you seem to know a great deal about it."

"You know, Doctor, that you are to be subpœnaed in one of the off-shoots of this Hall case where a young lady is suing Hall on a contract for furniture?"

"Am I, indeed? No; I did not know that."

It was useless to try further to pump the good Doctor, and good mornings were accordingly exchanged, the last words of the reverend gentlemen being: "Now be sure you keep faith with me, gentlemen." Wondering what there was to keep faith about the reporters left.

MRS. BURGE.

The story that the gossips tell about Mrs. Burge would be comic if it were not so deadly serious. She is a young and most attractive widow, and became acquainted with Mr. Hall professionally, as she bought a granite monument from him to put over her departed lord. One of the peculiarities of Mr. Hall's style of wooing was that he almost invariably became sentimental over widows and used to take them out to the cemetery in his buggy and grieve with them in the solemn solitudes of the city of the dead over the uncertainties of human life. When he brought Mrs Burge out and showed her the monument he had sold to her she was much surprised to see that he had not, as she had ordered, left a blank for her name to be put on the stone below her husband's. It is alleged that he tenderly told her that the blank would never be filled with her name, for she must now forget her sorrow and look to him for consolation, and that years hence when both of them had tired and laid down to rest under the daisies her name should be entwined with his and not with Burge's on the elegant tablet which should mark their graves. Somehow this lugubrious style of wooing must have points about it, for a little later the gossips say Mrs. Burge was much distressed at hearing that the gay Lothario was a married man. She determined to investigate, and accordingly went over to the house where he then was living with Miss Hardwick, 2704 Lucas avenue, and, ringing the bell, was confronted by a nurse holding a sore-eyed baby on her arms.

"Whose baby is that?"

"Mr. Hall's."

"And is there a Mrs. Hall?"

"Yes'm; she's up stairs. Would you like to see her?"

Of course, if rumor is to be believed, there was a scene, but even after this Hall had the hard cheek to show Mrs. Burge his Utah divorce and tell her that the lady with whom he was living was not his wife.

Complaints From Country Shippers Regarding Corn Inspection.

The Country Says It is Too Rigid—The Inspectors Say They are Only Careful.

For some time past complaints have freely been received by St. Louis commission merchants from their country shippers regarding the inspection of corn in this market, which inspection these shippers characterize as entirely too rigid, holding the standard of No. 2 so high that a large portion of the corn arriving here misses that grade and goes rejected or no grade. As the difference in price between No. 2 mixed and rejected has ruled 12@13c lower for latter the country shippers' "kick" has been most vigorous, and letters from them grow sharper and spicier as time passes and no improvement appears in the grading of their corn. It is not alone on corn of the 1880 crop that these shippers complain, but they claim that old corn of 1879, which has been kept in dry condition under cover and was in good merchantable shape, has missed grade when sent here. The same corn, both of 1880 and 1879, which has gone rejected in this market, when sent to Chicago, Peoria or Toledo has inspected No. 2 at those places. The St. Louis firms that have been the recipients of most of these complaints say that a large amount of corn is driven away from this market by the rigid inspection, the country shippers preferring to send their grain to points where they are sure the corn will grade and they can get No. 2 price, rather than take their chances of the corn going rejected here and selling far below the price of No. 2.

Mr. Thos. Akin, of E. A. Kent & Co., has been instructed by several of his country correspondents to forward their corn to Chicago if it misses grade here. He is satisfied St. Louis is losing a great deal of trade through its rigid inspection.

Messrs. Redmond Cleary & Co. claim that not alone Iowa corn, which it is admitted is mainly in poor shape, but Missouri and Kansas corn shipped here as No. 2 has missed grade, and the shippers are very bitter in their complaints. A letter to this firm from Malvern, Ia., claims that out of twenty two cars of 1879 corn sent here in full one-half inspected was rejected, when the same corn out of the same bins as that sent here graded high mixed in Peoria.

J. W. Booth & Sons received several sharp letters from correspondents at Chaunte and Cherryvale, Kansas, regarding the inspection of their corn in this market, the shippers asserting that the corn was in good merchantable condition when shipped, but went rejected here. All this corn was of the 1880 crop.

Mr. F. E. Lawrence, a grain shipper of Red Oak, Iowa, who was on 'Change to-day, expressed himself as very much dissatisfied with the St. Louis inspection of corn. He said that corn of the 1879 crop, in good condition and which has been in covered cribs, when sent here missed grading No. 2, while the same corn inspected No. 2 in Chicago. Rail rates from his station favor St. Louis, and all the corn along the line of the C., B. and Q. road from Crestline west would come to St. Louis if properly inspected here, but as it is the greater portion is diverted to Chicago. Mr. Lawrence accompanied a shipment of his corn to this market. Upon its arrival it inspected rejected, the inspector claiming it was soft. Mr. L. had some of the other St. Louis inspectors examine the corn, and they affirmed the decision of the first inspector, but this did not satisfy Mr. L., who then ordered his St. Louis merchant to forward the grain to Chicago. He claims that this shipment was of 1879 corn and in the best condition. He does not think the inspectors intend to wrong the country shipper, but that they are entirely too rigid, and when there is the least shadow of a doubt they give the benefit of the doubt to the elevators.

Other St. Louis firms say they have received none of these complaints. A. O. Grubb, of Cole Bros., had sampled corn inspected rejected here, and found the inspectors were right in thus grading it. Mr. Smith, this firm's traveling man, had heard no complaints regarding inspection when out in the country, but had on short weights, and found a great deal of grain driven away from this market owing to the large loss in weight on shipments made here. Billingsley & Nanson had heard complaints on new corn, but none on old. Thought the inspectors were right.

The St. Louis inspectors say they have had to be more than usually careful this season in their inspection. The corn arriving here, and especially that from Iowa, has been in poor shape, and while presenting a good appearance to the eye would not hold its condition long, and a few cars of this corn put into a bin of good corn would soon spoil the whole lot. The real trouble seems to be in the great difference between the price of No. 2 mixed and rejected. The average difference between these grades is 1½c to 2c, but now, with 12c@13c difference, if the country shipper's corn goes rejected and sells at its price, it lets him in for a large loss, hence his complaints. The St. Louis market for corn is essentially an export market, and there is not the demand for the low grades that there is in Chicago, Toledo and Peoria, where it is bought for distilling; so that while No. 2 mixed in St. Louis sells at a high figure the lower grades rule very low in value.

A NEW JOCKEY CLUB.

The Prospective Transfer of the Cote Brilliante Course.

A Combination Negotiating With Sam Ecker for His Interests.

There are rumors in circulation to-day that a change in the ownership of the Cote Brilliante race track has taken place. That negotiations were in progress last week, before the meeting closed was well known. Since the unsatisfactory wind up Sam Ecker has been more than ever inclined to part with what has proven in his hands a white elephant. The initial step looking to a change was taken by several gentlemen ten days ago. They saw that the relations between the track, as private property, and the club, as an honorary attachment, were wrong in principle. Anticipating at least a partial failure of the meeting they discussed a plan for interesting Messrs. Dozier, Fitch and other public spirited citizens and forming an association which should own and manage the track, not for money making, but as an institution to encourage turf sport and

BENEFIT THE CITY.

This movement has not reached the degree of strength and stability which justifies a proposition to purchase.

There has been formed another combination, however, which is making more headway. In this are said to be W. H. Thorwegan, Henry Ames and others. Report has it that a R. Watts, the pool seller, is interested in this plan. He was seen this morning by a POST DISPATCH reporter and said that he did not think the progress made in the negotiations hardly justified any newspaper mention of them. If he had any interest in the purchase of the track it would be a minor one, for he believed it was wrong in principle that pool-sellers should own a race track. The full control should be vested in men not interested in the pooling, and the pool selling should be subordinate to the club management. There had been some talk and some figuring but he did not think the negotiations had reached a conclusion.

THE PLANS.

From other sources it was learned that the Thorwegan party feel so confident of getting control of the property that plans for improvements are already being talked of. The sum of $22,000 is that which Ecker is said to place upon his lease and improvements. If the gentlemen who talk of purchasing do so they propose to erect a commodious club house, construct the promised steeple chase, have Page avenue sprinkled from Grand avenue to the track, and make other substantial improvements. The purses and stakes are to be on a scale which will tempt the best horses. One purse of $5,000 is talk of for the fall meeting, with $100 forfeit, pay or play. If the transfer is made a new club will be organized forthwith and preparations will commence without delay for the fall meeting.
